PRIVILEGES GRANTED BY BILL

BULLETIN.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 11.—"I will sign the bill with great pleasure," Governor Dunne said tonight, "unless there should be a well grounded objection as to its constitutionality. This I do not expect. I have favored women's suffrage for many years, although it was not part of our platform last fall."

SPRINGFIELD, June 11.—The woman's suffrage bill, granting women the right to vote for all statutory offices in the state of Illinois was passed by the house today by a vote of 83 ayes to 58 nays.

Pending notice of a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed it will remain in possession of the house. Unless the house reconsiders the vote, which is not likely, the suffrage bill will be up to Governor Dunne by the latter part of the present week for executive approval or veto.

McCarthy Changes Vote.

In order to give notice of a motion to reconsider, Representative McCarthy, Democrat of Chicago, changed his vote from "nay" to "aye." He gave the formal notice that on the next legislative day he will move a re-consideration. The limited suffrage bill which is now only a few steps from becoming a law was introduced in the senate on February 11, by Senator P. S. Magill, Republican, and was passed by the upper branch of the general assembly early in May. Representative Elwood Barker of McLeansboro, Republican from the fifty-first district, cast the seventy-seventh or deciding vote for the bill. When the roll call had been completed the measure was one vote short of constitutional majority. Speaker McKinley, whose name is last on the roll, had cast the seventy-sixth vote. He ordered a call of the absentees. Barker's name was the first absentee called. A shout went up when he voted for the bill.

Messrs. Farrar, Harris, Jackson and McCarthy voted for the bill, after it had received the seventy-seven votes necessary to pass it.

TURKISH MINISTER OF WAR ASSASSINATED

PRINCE SAID HALIM HAS BEEN NAMED GRAND VIZIER AD INTERIM

Official Was on Way to Sublime Forte When His Car Stopped Because Road Was Torn Up—During Delay Ten Shots Were Fired, Killing Officer and Aide.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 11.—Mahmoud Schekef Pasha, the Turkish grand vizier and minister of war, was shot and killed by assassins today. His aide de camp, Lieut Ibrahim Bey, also was killed. Prince Said Halim, foreign minister and ex-president of council of state, has been appointed grand vizier ad interim. All the other ministers retain their portfolios.

An official account of the assassination says the grand vizier was on his way to the sublime forte and his car was stopped because the road was torn up. During the delay some unidentified persons in another car fired ten shots at the grand vizier. He died of his wounds half an hour later.

Lieut. Ibrahim Bey who was accompanying Mahmoud Schekef Pasha also was hit by some of the bullets and subsequently died.

A man named Tazal Tew-Pik has been arrested; he is suspected of being one of the assassins. He had in his possession two revolvers and some cartridges.

municipality or other sub-division of the state.

And the following township officers: Supervisors, town clerk, assessor, collector and highway commissioners; and at all town meetings in the township.

The suffrage bill permits women to vote for all statutory offices. They are not permitted under its provisions, however, to vote for constitutional officers such as governor and other state officers, United States senators or members of the general assembly.

Antionette Funk's Statement.

The following statement was made by Antionette Funk of the woman's suffrage lobby:

"The parliamentary battle which meant briefly, should our bill be voted on today or passed until it could be called or smothered by adverse influences, was hot and furious. Clever men spoke on both sides and honors seemed about equal until the master parliamentarian, Edward Shurtliff of Maringo, took the floor for us. The tide turned there and the parliamentary battle was over. More dramatic still, was the contest on the last line up as to whether the bill should pass. It was a wonderful thing to see our men stand firm but when we had gotten down to within thirty votes of the end we needed twenty-one votes to put us into the open. We could count only seventeen and when the last man on the direct roll call had responded to his name we had just seventy-six votes. Everything was quiet. I believe we could have heard a pin drop when the clerk turned to call Mr. Speaker and the response came clear and without hesitation 'Aye'. Then the absentees were called and eight voted aye. With every added vote the floor of the house and the balconies responded with enthusiastic applause. In the balcony we counted the roll call on the four ballots taken, literally holding our breath. When it seemed that we might lose by a vote or two it was a marvelous thing to see our captains work. The enemy was not idle. He feared for a moment that some of the enthusiastic enemy would try to carry some of our friends from the floor. Every method known to desperate lobbying was brought to bear upon Mr. Jackson, the only colored man in the house but he had said he would stand for the women of his race and he did stand a solid rock of manly determination. 'It is a glorious victory. The battle is over. And not a man who voted yes on the woman's bill will ever regret it.'"

Elizabeth Booth Comments.
Elizabeth K. Booth, chairman of the executive committee of the Illinois equal suffrage association said:

"The most intense moment of the day was when Mr. Shurtliff responded to Mr. Wilson's inquiries and straightened out the parliamentary tangle which seemed about to table women's suffrage for two more years on a mere technicality. From my particular seat in the gallery it seemed like the biggest fight of the session. My post-impression is a bedlam of voices, points of order, hands raised in the air, a multitudinous seething of the southeastern section of the Illinois house and the member from my own district, Mr. O'Rourke, making frantic efforts to smother the bill without a roll call.

"At every step the bill advanced gratitude for the steady stand of our friends overwhelmed me. The opposition tried their patience to the limit and I want to tell the women of Illinois, they stood—our men stood—to the glorious end."

"With dinner time three hours past when the final roll call came, I refuse forever the statement that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. It was, notwithstanding the cravings of the inner man that eighty-three human men were recorded as favoring votes for women."

QUAKER OATS CO. ATTACKED IN SUIT

Government Charges a Monopoly in Deroga-tion of People's Rights

ASKS FOR INJUNCTION

Court Petitioned to Enjoin Company from Engaging in Inter-State Commerce

ACTION IS A PRECEDENT

CHICAGO, Ill., June 11.—The Quaker Oats company—the so-called oat-meal trust—controlling 90 per cent of the oat-meal products and by products of the country was attacked by the federal government in anti-trust suit filed here today charging a monopoly in derogation of the common rights of the people of the United States and in violation of the Sherman law. At the offices of the Quaker Oats company here no one cared to comment on the suit until the government's bill had been studied.

Does Not Ask Dissolution.

While the government does not specifically ask for the dissolution of the Quaker Oats company it petitions the court to decree the corporation "in and of itself" to be illegal and to enjoin the company from engaging in inter-state commerce in oat-meal products until its alleged monopoly has been abandoned and the competitive conditions existing prior to the combination restored.

The monopoly is declared to have been effected by combinations, conspiracies and unlawful acts in restraint of trade to terminate which the government seeks various permanent injunctions.

Want Temporary Injunction.

Pending final hearing of the case the petition asks for a temporary injunction to bring about competition at once.

The name of Myron T. Herrick, American Ambassador to France, is mentioned in the government's bill, not as a defendant but as one of the directors and organizers in 1891 of the American Cereal company which is declared to have been formed with the design of restraining and monopolizing the oat meal trade. This company which acquired about 50 per cent of the business is described as one of the earlier steps in the creation of the present alleged monopoly.

Defendants Named.

Following are named as defendants: The Quaker Oats company; The Great Western Cereal company; Henry P. Crowell, Robert Stuart, James H. Douglas, John Stuart, A. Stanford White, John P. Welling and Joy Morton all of Illinois; J. R. Nutt, Cleveland; James H. Andrews, Akron, O.; and Whiting G. Snow, Monticello, N. Y. The government asks for an injunction prohibiting the ten individual defendants from carrying on all inter-state commerce until they satisfy the court they are not engaged in any combination or conspiracy to thwart competition in the oat meal business.

Action Is a Precedent.

According to James H. Wilkerson, United States District Attorney who filed the suit, his action in seeking to withhold the privilege of inter-state commerce from the defendants is a precedent in suits of the kind. In seeking to bar the defendants from shipping from one state to another the government asks that the inhibition be made temporary so that the bar may be removed upon good behavior of the defendants, but this removal is not to be permanent either, for the bill seeks a decision where under the bars may be put again if there should be future violations.

The bill recites that prior to 1889 ten companies controlled about half of the national trade in oat meal products. Led by the Quaker Mills companies these firms entered into a pool under the firm name Consolidated Oat-meal company. In 1904 the name was changed to Quaker Oats company and the American Cereal company was taken into the combination giving it control of sixty per cent of the oat meal business. In June 1911 the bills asserts that Great Western Cereal company was brought in.

A grand jury investigation followed but the evidence was found unsuitable for a criminal case and to day's action followed.

DESCRIBE WAR TIME RULE IN STRIKE REGIONS

TWO MEMBERS OF MILITARY COM-MITTEE TESTIFY

Senate Body Expressed Itself Satisfied as to Charge That Citizens Had Been Tried and Convicted in Violation of the Constitution.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 11.—War time rule in the coal strike regions of West Virginia was described here today and after three military officers has described conditions the committee expressed itself satisfied as to the charge that "the citizens of West Virginia" had been tried and convicted in violation of the constitution and laws of the United States.

Two Military Men Testify.

Two members of the military committee which at three different times have assumed absolute dominion over some 150 square miles of West Virginia territory testified this afternoon. They are Captain Charles R. Morgan, a lawyer and Major James T. Pratt, who was president of the second military court which took charge of the strike district. Both told the committee that their proceedings were conducted without regard to the civil laws of the state; that they arrested, arraigned, tried and convicted offenders in the strike zone without recourse to process of the civil courts and they imposed sentences without regard to the limitations imposed by the statutes of West Virginia.

Acted as in Time of War.

"We considered the entire strike district was in a state of actual warfare," said Captain Morgan, with soldierly frankness, "and we acted accordingly to the procedure of the United States army in time of war."

"But the constitution of the state provides," interjected Attorney Morgan for the miners, "that the military shall be subordinate to the civil power and no citizen unless engaged in military service of the state, shall be tried or punished in any military court for any offense that is cognizable by the civil courts of the state."

"My understanding was," replied Captain Morgan, "that during this state of insurrection which prevailed the constitution of the state of West Virginia had been suspended by the acts of these men who were burning, killing and destroying property."

"You believed the constitution had been suspended," demanded Senator Borah.

"Yes sir," replied the militia officer, "that is, we believed these men had suspended the constitution and that in order to perpetuate the state of West Virginia and restore the constitution we were justified in using extreme measures."

Sentences Exceed Statutory Punishment.

Both Captain Morgan and Major Pratt asserted that the commission did not feel itself limited by the statutory provision regarding punishment for offenses and Major Pratt gave several instances of sentences imposed by the commission, exceeding the statutory punishment.

A dozen pictures of men, clad in prison clothing, and with heads shaved, were identified by Major Pratt, as men who had been sentenced by the military commission and sent to jail. One was given a sentence of seven and a half years for perjury, several others were given three, four and five year terms for "interfering with officers on duty."

No Indictments Against Men.

The officers admitted there were no indictments against the men, that they did not have to commit a statutory offense to become amenable to the action of the commission that the commissions' findings were made in secret, forwarded to the governor and those convicted knew nothing of the result until he was seized and taken to prison.

Sentences were made temporary so that the committee had ample testimony on this branch of the inquiry; the statement of facts seem full and complete.

Tonight Senator Borah took up witnesses produced by the mine workers to testify as to charges that peonage obtains in the Pain and Cabin sections.

AMENDMENT TO INTER-STATE COMMERCE LAW WILL BE PRESENTED

Sentiment Favoring Action Prevails At Meeting of Coal Dealers Just Closed.

Chicago, June 11.—An amendment to the inter-state commerce law to enable to investigate damage claims against transportation companies will be presented for congressional enactment according to the sentiment of members of the Illinois and Wisconsin coal dealers association which closed its annual meeting here today.

"Individual claims against roads are in most cases small and the claimant does not enforce them owing to expense," said Edward Henderson of Indiana.

R. E. Gannon of Cairo, Ill., was elected president and Thomas J. Cossey of Danville, vice-president.

ISSUES RESTRAINING ORDER.

Springfield, Ill., June 11.—Judge J. O. Humphreys in the United States district court for the southern Illinois district today issued a restraining order prohibiting strikes from doing duty within one hundred feet of the show case factory at Quincy.

The order is the outcome of the strike of the woodworkers at that place.

SEVERAL NARROWLY ESCAPE

RACINE, Wis., June 11.—With the expected deaths of two of the fatally injured victims of the explosion on board the steam barge E. M. Peck today, and with the addition of one man still missing, the death toll exacted in the disaster will in all probability total seven.

Physician attending George Turschl and George Drake, two of the injured members of the vessel's crew state that the men cannot survive their injuries.

Second Engineer Missing.

The second engineer, Bernhard J. H. Schwensen is still missing and is believed to have been drowned in the harbor.

The Dead.

W. E. Andrews, chief engineer, aged 40, Huron, Ohio.

Adam Kriegel, fireman, 34, Toledo, Ohio.

Gustavo Gunderson, fireman, 30, Toledo, Ohio.

Nathan Downs, fireman, 40, Toledo, Ohio.

The missing:

Bernhard J. H. Schwensen, second engineer, 40, Sandusky, Ohio.

The injured:

George Turschl, watchman, 24, Toledo, arm torn off and internally hurt; will die.

George Drake, wheelman, Toledo, 37, skull fractured, terribly scalded and maimed; will die.

Edward Young, oiler, Buffalo, N. Y., internally hurt; may not survive.

Peter Raim, deckhand, Cleveland, Ohio, internally injured and badly bruised.

Merrill Felker, wheelman, 35, ribs broken and cut and bruised.

Mrs. M. L. Hinkel, stewardess, 36, Toledo, badly bruised.

M. L. Hinkel, steward, aged 37, badly bruised.

Captain H. M. Hyttle of the tug Emma Bloeker, Racine, half a block from the scene of the accident, was struck by flying timber and knocked off bridge into river.

Claim Boilers Were Weak.

Although it is not officially admitted to be true, members of the crew are reported to have declared that because of the defective condition of one of the twin boilers considerable difficulty was experienced in getting up sufficient steam to move the vessel from one dock to another. It is claimed that the safety valves on the defective boiler were screwed down so as to more quickly raise the required pressure.

The belief has been expressed that this action if true, resulted in the yielding of the boiler plates.

The vessel was proceeding up the river to another dock when the accident occurred. The ship was literally torn to pieces above the hold from the stern forward to the pilot house. Her steel sides were ripped open almost to the water line and her stern section was blown away entirely. Fire broke out immediately following the explosion.

The steam charred hulk is at the coal wharf adjacent to the spot where her boilers gave way. Just prior to the shifting of her position, twenty-five stevedores on board the Peck decided to walk to the new location. Had they remained on board very few would have escaped with their lives.

Several members of the crew were blown into harbor and were picked up by the life saving crew.

WOULD GIVE POWERS TO COMMERCE COMMISSION

WILLIS PREPARING BILL TO EXTEND JURISDICTION OVER RATES

Basic Principle Will Be Right of Congress to Control Absolutely Instrumentalities of Inter-State Commerce — Bitter Opposition Expected.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Extension of the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission over intra-state rates on inter-state railroads in accordance with the Minnesota rate decisions, will be proposed in a bill now being prepared by Representative Willis of Ohio, a Republican member of the house interstate and foreign commerce committee.

The basic principle of this measure will be the right of congress to control absolutely the instrumentalities of inter-state commerce even to the extent of regulating the rates in each state. Such is Representative Willis' interpretation of what the supreme court of the United States held in the Minnesota rate cases to be within the power of congress.

The bill may be patterned after the federal safety appliance acts. Since the decision in the Minnesota rate cases, these laws have been pointed to as instances where congress has been fit to exercise its jurisdiction in state matters because these matters concern the instrumentalities of inter-state commerce. In a safety appliance decision about a year ago the supreme court held the laws applied to cars on inter-state roads, although the cars were carrying commerce originating and ending within the state of Alabama. The bitter opposition to the bill is regarded as certain to arise both in the house and senate.

Senator Newlands, chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee takes the position that the states are handling the rate question so satisfactorily that the federal government would not be justified in interfering by exercising its power as outlined by the supreme court.

SUBURBS OF BIG CITIES CANNOT ORGANIZE SMALL NATIONAL BANKS

Attorney General McReynolds Renders Opinion to Treasury Department.

Washington, June 11.—Suburbs of big city in future will be unable to organize small national banks with capital of $25,000 or $50,000. Attorney General McReynolds has rendered an opinion to the treasury department holding that it is not lawful under the national bank act to consider suburbs as separate places from the cities within whose corporate boundaries they lie and that if a city has a population of more than 50,000 people the minimum capital for its national banks whether in the city proper or in the suburbs must be $250,000.

This will result in a complete reversal of the previous policy of the government, and it is stated, will likely cause suburban towns of big cities to organize only state banks. The question arose over applications for the organization of three national banks of $25,000 capital in the suburbs of Chicago.

It is not expected that the treasury department will make the opinion retroactive and disturb the charters of these institutions.

ATTEMPT TO ELECT OFFICERS OF ORDER OF FORESTERS FAILS

Minority Party Starts Attempt to Defeat the Administration Ticket.

Peoria, Ill., June 11.—A special night session of the Catholic Order of Foresters called for the purpose of attempting an election of officers failed in its intent and the session adjourned until tomorrow.

The minority party has started an attempt to defeat the administration ticket headed by State Chief Ranger William Fryan of Chicago. The consensus of opinion tonight seems to be that the administration with Chicago back of it, will have no difficulty in winning out in the morning.

Springfield now leads in the contest for the next meeting with Danville, Rock Island, Alton, East St. Louis and Dixon all well supported.

A resolution calling for the submission of all important questions to a referendum vote of the various courts was left over for decision until tomorrow.

FEARING INSANITY; KILLS SELF AND CHILDREN.

Fond du lac, Wis., June 11.—Fearing she was going insane, Mrs. Mary Schneider, wife of a farmer near Dotyville, killed her three children and herself today. While the children were asleep Mrs. Schneider entered their room and with a butcher knife and razor almost severed the heads from the bodies of the children, all of whom were less than five years of age. The woman had been ill for a week.

SENATE CHANGES WILL CUT REVENUE

Transferring Dutable Articles to Free List Agre-gate $1,500,000 Loss

SOME MAY BE MADE UP

Changes in Cotton Schedule Will Increase Average Rates of Underwood Bill Five Per Cent

TO MODIFY INCOME TAX

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Changes in the Underwood tariff bill by the senate finance sub-committee, transferring proposed dutiable articles to the free list will aggregate an estimated annual loss in revenue to the government of nearly a million and a half dollars. This curtailment of the total estimates for revenue under the house bill is based only on articles known to have been transferred to the free list thus far upon sub-committee recommendations and does not take into account the increases in duties which will be proposed on many articles in various schedules. Added to the $25,000,000 estimated loss in revenue under the house bill free list, this would aggregate $26,500,000.

Hemp Placed on Free List.

Included in the senate list are the revenues that would be derived from hemp which the Underwood bill makes dutiable, but which the senate sub-committee today decided should be transferred to the free list. Hemp will be sent to the customs on free list on the ground that it belongs there if other products of the farms, such as cattle and wheat, are to be free listed, as it would result in cheap selling to the farmers and compensate them somewhat by reducing their harvesting expenditures.

Some of the loss in revenue may be made up by countervailing duties on certain agricultural products, but this amount, it is estimated, would not be large.

Among the articles which the senate sub-committee has added to the free list and the estimated revenues are cut off are:

Pig iron, $120,000; Ferro manganese and Spiegeleisen, $12,600; hemp, $78,400; livestock, $583,000; wheat, $200,000; photographic films, $216,000; cedar wood, $10,000; coal tar dyes, $90,000; a total of $1,423,900.

Will Probably Be Increased.

When all the sub-committee have completed their recommendations this amount probably will be increased.

The finance committee today had under consideration the changes in the cotton schedule proposed by Senator Johnson's sub-committee. Most of them were approved, but one or two matters were referred back to the committee for further consideration. In this schedule the net result of the altered rates will increase the schedule over the average cotton rates in the Underwood bill about five per cent, the principal changes affecting cotton yarns.

This is the only schedule in which the senate action will result in an increase.

The income tax clause will be modified to give mutual life insurance companies an opportunity to claim exemption by proving they are not conducted for profit.

C. A. Patterson of Forest City, local chairman of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, was in the city yesterday collecting ballots which had been distributed to the men, on which they were to mark their decision as to whether they wished to strike for a nine-month wage schedule and better working conditions. While the vote has not been tallied, and probably will not be for several days Mr. Patterson stated that as far as he could ascertain a majority of men on the portion of the C. P. & St. L. he visited were in favor of the move.

According to a circular sent out to all telegraphers, train dispatchers, station agents and linemen by the C. P. & St. L. road, the committee of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, which is composed of C. C. Clotfelter of Athens, general chairman; W. W. Harris of Medora, secretary; and C. A. Patterson of Forest City, local chairman presented Mr. Hurst, general superintendent of the road with a copy of proposed rules and wage scale to govern working conditions of the men, asking him to name a date on which he would meet the committee and discuss the matter. Several conferences were held, according to the circular at which Mr. Hurst confined himself entirely to the wage scale and finally offered to increase certain positions $5 per month but declined to consider an increase for other positions. The men state that several unsuccessful attempts were made to secure a conference with Mr. Ramsey, president and general manager of the road, and the men along the system were appealed to and asked if they wished to insist upon an immediate meeting with Mr. Ramsey and the instituting of a fair schedule on the railroad.

The men state that in some places agents for the road are being paid only $25 per month and they have to handle all freight and passenger trains and wire work. They also state that they are willing to take less than paid on other roads, but are fighting for a living wage scale. Mr. Patterson, who was in the city yesterday, collected ballots on the main line between Peoria and Springfield and on the Jacksonville branch and Mr. Harris made the trip along the main line between Springfield and St. Louis.

Horseshoe Curve.

SAVED BY A WEIRD WARNING.

The Remarkable Signal Light That Summarily Stopped Two Trains That Were Rushing on to Certain Destruction In a Head-on Collision.

Once upon a time if any man had asked me if two locomotives rushing toward another head on and with no human agency between could avoid a collision I would have replied, "Not by any earthly power." Since I have had my fling at railroadng as a Grand Trunk brakeman in Canada, however, I do not feel so cocksure about impossibilities. I venture to say that any man who passed through that affair at Sandy curve, in western Ontario, finding himself as suddenly rescued as he was suddenly in peril, would not be too glib in future regarding what can and what cannot happen.

On one section of my run lay what was probably one of the most dangerous curves on any railroad route in America outside the Rocky mountains. They called it by many names—Sandy curve, the Horseshoe, the Devil's elbow and the Switchback—but of all descriptions none fitted it so well as the Horseshoe, for the track formed exactly that shape. In order to save the cost of a tunnel the construction engineers had taken the road around the head of a mountainous cliff that jutted out into the lake and then back 100 yards to the mainland. Between the points of the curve loomed an ugly wall of granite 300 feet in height, a barrier absolutely impenetrable to light and sound. The curved roadbeds forming the two sides of this curious piece of pioneer construction had their point of contact, of course, at the toe of the shoe, beneath which lay the glistening waters of the lake. The Horseshoe curve was notorious for a long series of nasty accidents.

It was the 7th of November and miserably dark and foggy. Five miles from the curve I was passing across an open platform between two coaches when I heard our whistle shrieking. In the forest of spruces and those ugly galleries of granite the sound echoed and throbbed until it fell to a murmur. At that moment it seemed to me that I caught the blare of another whistle, a trifle louder than our last echo. A shudder ran down my spine, and I leaned far out on the steps, but nothing could be seen, and the sound was not repeated. I mentioned the incident to the conductor, but he only laughed at me. That did not make me forget the blast I had heard sifting out of the spruce trees, and I knew in my heart that it did not come from our locomotive.

To keep my mind off my fears I went forward to the baggage car and chatted with the "newsy." Then I fell asleep on a bench.

"Crunch, click" and then a final series of crunches.

I knew that meant the air brakes, and jumped on to the flit. In an instant I was up and, grabbing my lantern, tumbled through the door after the news agent. The long train was swinging far out on the Horseshoe curve. The hurrying and grinding of the brakes were like the torture of a nightmare. With a last painful grating of the buffers the train came to a standstill. Passengers, conductor and train crew were coming forward in great alarm, but before we could reach the locomotive the engineer loomed out of the darkness, his face glowing with a fearful excitement. "Did you see?" he cried vaguely, and I never saw a railroad man more overcome. "Look yonder."

We all stared where he pointed. Above the dismal lake, about a hundred yards from shore, there hung suspended a ball of brilliant, snow white fire, as if the moon had lost her bearings and had tumbled toward the earth. We were deathly silent at the sight. No one volunteered an explanation.

"Don't you understand?" yelled the engineer. "Don't you people understand? There is a train on the opposite side of the Horseshoe, and it was coming up to meet us at twenty miles an hour. We missed each other by an act of God!"

Then I saw what he meant. That strange ball of light suspended out there in the darkness was the focus of the two headlights, and both engineers had seen it in the nick of time.

We stood there like statues. I know my heart was beating like a hammer, and my comrades were pale faced and open mouthed with wonder.

When we had in some measure recovered ourselves we all marched forward to shake hands with the fellows on the other train. An inquiry? Of course there was, and our conductor was "fired" for disobeying instructions. The fact is we should never have approached the curve until the other train had passed us on a switch several miles this side of it.—Wide World Magazine.

A Hint Taken.

"These opera glasses were given to me a year ago," she said sweetly. "Aren't they beautiful?" he replied. "Yes," she answered, "but I discovered this afternoon that they're beginning to rust from lack of use." Whereupon he tumbled to himself and invited her to go to the theater.—Detroit Free Press.

ADDRESSED PUPILS AT THE SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF

President Kern of Board of Administration Heard With Interest.

In addressing the children of the State School for the Deaf informally recently Mr. Kern, president of the state board of administration is said to have made one of the best chapel talks ever heard at the institution. The speaker said that his hearers were referred to as defectives and that he could sympathize with them since he was himself in a sense a defective. Mr. Kern met with an accident some years ago which left him with but one hand and so he would be incapacitated for learning the language of deaf mutes and in this unusual way he placed himself on a footing of sympathy with them.

Mr. Kern took occasion to express his pleasure at being asked to speak to the pupils and said that he was struck with the fine appearance of the student body. He spoke in particular of the state's duties towards its defective classes and said that Illinois occupied a place in the front ranks in its care of unfortunates. It was evident from the tone of his address that he fully realizes the responsibility resting upon himself as president of the board of administration. He spoke of the value of education for the deaf and referred to the evident good work being done at this institution. He was most favorably impressed with the building and grounds, saying that it was his first visit and he was surprised and pleased to see the most beautiful and well arranged. Speaking to the graduating class he gave them some sound advice out of his own large experience. His references to those four great Illinoisans—Lincoln and Douglas were particularly pleasing. He said further that in his own home town of Belleville he was acquainted with men and women graduates of the I. S. D. and that they stood well in the community as desirable citizens.

The sharp twinges.

The tired-out feelings.

You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

Jacksonville citizens testify. W. C. Osborne, 455 S. Clay avenue, Jacksonville, Ill., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cured me of kidney trouble when I used them in 1909. About two years I suffered from rheumatic pains in my back. I was lame and my kidneys did not do their work as they should. I heard other people speak highly of Doan's Kidney Pills and decided to try them. I got a supply at Armstrong's Drug Store. In several weeks they cured me. I have had no further trouble."

against the bill. In part he said: "I address myself to you Republicans as well as to my Democratic colleagues—you gentlemen who are temporary out of power because of a house divided against itself. This bill is going to change the political map of Illinois. It's going to wipe out all party lines. It's going to eliminate the Democratic party from the face of the earth. It's going to eliminate the Republican party too."

"I'm going to be candid, let the chips fall where they will. The women of the Democratic party won't go to the polls and vote. husbands, fathers, brothers and their families don't believe in it and the women themselves don't believe in it in consequence. The women who go and vote will not be Republican women either."

"Search the ranks and file of the lobby that has been made up, I can see you smile, Brother Carter, (who classified himself as a Bull Moose) you know who they are and who they will vote for and that this means the extermination of the old Republican and the old Democratic parties."

"Were you sent here, you Democrats to owe your allegiance to the Democratic party, to do that—to destroy your party?"

"And to you old line Republicans who are hoping for a rejuvenation and that you will again occupy the places at the white house and in the state of Illinois what has come over you and the tenets of your belief? What has suddenly come over you to make you forget it all and be willing to hand out your hopes for all time to come?"

"What in God's name is moving you men to be for this destructive legislation I don't know. I can't understand."

First Opportunity To Vote.
Chicago, June 11.—The first election which will give Chicago women an opportunity of voting will be next April, when 35 aldermen are to be selected. In the primaries in February, the women may vote by registering by affidavit but prior to the April election there will be a general registration when the present lists are expected to multiply greatly by the women voters. Following the aldermanic election in April will come the county election in November, 1914.

The suffrage act bar the women from voting for many of the county officers because they are provided for in the state constitution. A few, however, may be voted for by the women.

SENDS GREETING TO HON. W. J. BRYAN.

Hon. William J. Bryan,
Secretary of State,
Washington, D. C.
The Alumni association of Illinois college assembled here at commencement today, proudly conscious of the splendid achievements of its members in the past, happy in the thought that the same ideals still inspire its members, felicitate the nation on your appointment to a position of great power for good in our country's affairs, and by a unanimous rising vote direct me to extend to you its sincere expression of abiding confidence and its continued feeling of affection and esteem.

We are proud to feel that the democratic ideals in which you have been a distinguished national leader for so long, have always characterized this college. These ideals furnished the dominant note of this commencement.

We wish you happiness and success and are intensely proud of your membership in this society.
John E. Kehoe.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

A children's party was given Wednesday afternoon by Miss Elizabeth Russell of 222 Park street in honor of Jane Russell Smith, the little daughter of the Rev. Thomas W. Smith of New York city. Twenty children were present at the gathering which lasted from three until six o'clock. A number of games were played and refreshments were served. Rev. Mr. Smith, wife and daughter will leave for New York city this morning.

Employees of the F. J. Waddell & company store, numbering more than fifty, enjoyed a supper at Nichols park last night, the guests of Mr. Waddell. The entire party left to square at 5:45 o'clock in a special car which had been very prettily decorated for the event and went en masse to the park. There a very generous kind of picnic supper was served and afterward an hour or more was spent in boating and in the various other pleasures which the park affords. Mr. Waddell had made very careful plans for the entertainment of his guests and the party was one which all found delightful.

The seniors of Illinois college were entertained Wednesday, the morning of their graduation, at an eight o'clock breakfast by Dr. and Mrs. Ames at their home on Grand avenue. The delicious repast of three courses was served on tables decorated with blue and white flowers emblematic of the college colors. Each one of the class of eleven as present in cap and gown ready for the exercises later in the forenoon. After breakfast each member drunk the health of the class and its hospitable officer in a silver loving cup of ice cold punch and pledged himself to be present at the reunion of the class at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ames, commencement day, 1915.

At the time of his arrest Beseler admitted that his speculations amounted to $15,000.

ALUMNI OF ILLINOIS MEET IN ENTHUSIASTIC BANQUET

Lively College Spirit Manifested at Alumni Luncheon Wednesday in Gymnasium—Addresses Heard From Several of the Men of '88.

The annual alumni luncheon was held in the Illinois college gymnasium Wednesday afternoon, immediately after the closing of the graduation exercises. A large number of friends of the college and alumni were present, among whom were a number from the classes of '88 and '87, who, later in the day, held a joint class reunion. College spirit ran high and more than one future reunion was planned around the banquet table.

A. T. Capps welcomed the class of 1913 to the ranks of the alumni and Mrs. Genevieve Clark, the president, replied in behalf of the class. He then introduced A. E. Day, 1888, as toastmaster. Mr. Day called on Mr. John E. Kehoe for the first address. Mr. Kehoe kept the audience laughing a good deal of the time by his clever wit and apt illustration. In the course of his talk he said that the day had come for the Alumni association to take real active part in the institution. Before closing he put a motion that Mr. Bryan, the secretary of state, be sent a telegram commemorative of the occasion and wishing him happiness and success. This was ordered sent, as was the one of congratulation and greeting to several of the oldest of the alumni; T. J. C. Fagg, '42; William Jayne, '47; E. W. Blatchford, '45; Rev. Julian M. Sturtevant, '54. Mr. Allen A. Tanner gave the next address, which deprecated the tendency to pay too much attention to the past to the exclusion of the present and the future with its wonderful possibilities for service.

Bishop Morrison told of his early days in Jacksonville and of his youthful dream of spending the last day of his life in the city he considers the most beautiful in the country, a dream which he has forgotten in the press of duties that especially beset a man of his station. He spoke of the all too common tendency of looking too much to the past. "It is not a great thing," he said, "that life is so rich and full that the present is so bright and the future so full of possibilities."

Harry J. Dunbaugh, '99, said he was glad to see the awakening spirit of loyalty to college growing among the alumni and that he could see no reason why the graduates and former students of Illinois college shouldn't manifest as much college spirit as the men of Yale, Princeton and other college men of the east.

Edward Clifford, '96, was heard in an excellent address on the relation of character and credit and place of faith in the conducting of life.

Edwards Capps, '87, followed with the report of the alumni fund. Of the 79 classes which have graduated from the college, 65 have surviving members. There are 57 of these who have among their number contributors to the alumni fund. The class of '01 has 15 contributors and the class of 1911 can boast of the largest of all, 17 students so contributing. There are 250 on the list, 50 of whom did not graduate from the institution. Mr. Capps said he was at first discouraged to find that the percentage of alumni maintaining the fund was but 25, but that he considered himself more fortunate when he found that none of the colleges of the east can boast of more than 10 per cent giving to such a fund.

Howard D. French told briefly of Amherst way of interesting the alumni in the affairs of the college. He said the main thing was to get them to return to the commencement.

Rev. Thomas W. Smith closed the program of talks with a tribute to Prof. E. B. Clapp and the presentation on behalf of '87 of a framed picture of that professor to the college.

George Merrill then arose and on behalf of the class of '88 presented a portrait of the famous classic scholar, H. W. Johnston.

The meeting adjourned after singing a stanza of 'Auld Lang Syne,' led by Henry Kirby.

HARDER FIRE TRUCK HAS HAD NO OFFICIAL TEST

Eighty Horse Power Engine Has Been Exchanged For the Smaller One—Must Show Power to Go At High Speed Up Eight Per Cent Grade.

The fact that the engine in the Harder fire truck which the city contemplates purchasing, was recently taken out and one of higher power substituted has caused a good deal of comment. When Commissioner Engel was asked about the matter last night he said that no test of the fire truck has been made as yet in any official way. He said he understood that the agent for the company had taken out the 40 horse power engine and had put in one of eighty horse power but that this change was made wholly on the company's initiative, presumably to get ready for a test.

The specifications require that before the truck is accepted that its power must be proven to pull the fire engine up an eight per cent grade at the rate of twenty miles an hour. Unless all requirements are fully met Mr. Engel said the truck will not be purchased. While it is hard to have the intention of the council all along to have a truck of sufficient power to pull the fire engine also, Commissioner Engel has some doubts about this program being entirely feasible on account of rough pavements but is convinced that for other service that the truck will add greatly to the fire protection of the city.

COMMENCEMENT DAY AT ILLINOIS COLLEGE

HONORED INSTITUTION HAS CLOSED 84TH YEAR OF WORK.

Exercises Took Place in College Grove Wednesday Morning—Honorary Degrees for Four—Rev. Allan A. Tanner Made Address on Social Progress—President Rammelkamp's Annual Statement Shows Growth.

For eighty-four years commencement day has been observed at Old Illinois college yet it is doubtful if ever in all that long period exercises have surpassed in interest and importance those of yesterday. There were eleven graduates in the literary department of the college and diplomas were granted also to five for work done in music. Honorary degrees were conferred upon four graduates of the class of 1888. The commencement address was delivered by Rev. Allan A. Tanner of Denver, Colo., his theme being "The Sources of Social Progress." It was an address of absorbing interest, an appeal for the settlement of present day industrial and social problems upon the broad basis of Christianity, with a sermon in disguise, couched in language so unusual and with argument so convincing that the "message" could not but sink into the hearts of the auditors. The annual statement of President Rammelkamp showed that the affairs of the college are in exceedingly gratifying condition and that the past year has been twelve months of growth along various lines.

The exercises following a long established and delightful custom took place in the grove just west of Jones memorial building. The platform shaded by the great branches of overhanging elms was decorated with flowers and greenery. The attendance was such that there were many standing along the aisles. The procession which moved from Sturtevant hall to the grove at 10 o'clock included members of the graduating class, members of the classes of 1887 and 1888, other alumni, the trustees, the faculty, the president and guests of honor. After a selection by the Johnson orchestra the invocation was by Rev. James G. Russell of Onk, Neb. Miss Genevieve Clark gave an oration on "Woman Suffrage and Social Progress," in which she handled an important theme in a very thoughtful way. Warren E. Hall discussed "What is Practical Education?" pointing out that one of the greatest values of education is to bring to young men and young women an appreciation of what life really means and is not simply to fit them for making money.

After another orchestral number President Rammelkamp presented Dr. Allan A. Tanner to make the commencement address. He said truly that the speaker was esteemed not only because he is the son of his father, but also for what he is himself and for what he is doing in the world. Out of a heart overflowing with love for his fellow-men, an experience broader than usually falls to the lot of a man of his years, and out of a mind trained with thought and research, the speaker discussed "The Source of Social Progress." The address in the main was as follows:

Must Be Savors of Men.
To confer with you about those things which promote the common good and I come, rather than to advise you how to conduct your personal lives. There is no evasion of the old truth that the best way to become good is to try to do good. Star hitched wagons never get stuck in the mire. To be safe in the world, we must become saviors of the world. Certainly the associations of the place are favorable to this line of thought. Illinois college sprang from altruistic impulses. Such was the note which we used to catch from the chapel sermons of President Sturtevant. Such was the teaching of Dr. Jones in philosophy and of Dr. Milligan in economics. Such was one of the last expressions that fell from my father's lips, indicative of his life. "It is a great gratification to feel that one has been able to accomplish even a little for the future—for some one else." And I rejoice that the present administration of this institution is doing much to emphasize this ideal, without which education has little value.

And one is sure of a responsive hearing when he speaks upon social progress and obligation at such a time as this. Abundantly able to bear the burden of the world does the graduate feel. What is better, he desires to do so. Altruism glorifies his self-confidence. For the hour, at least, the rest of us share his feelings. Our failures fade. Our doubts vanish. Fine purposes again glimmer in the sky. "The same old lightning in the blood. That fired men's hearts before the flood. Drives all men to the endless fight. To try and fix this old world right. And though the clouds of doubt draw nigh. And hide the sun from out the sky. And though life marches through the gloom. To music of the steps of doom. A voice comes through the darkness far. And smites that cloud with a star. And makes the thunder blackness bright. Go in and fix the old thing right."

This crusading impulse is one of the great sources of social progress. We be to the world if it perished. We can well afford to be very generous attitude toward its manifestation. Let us give a welcome and a hearing to absolutely everyone who feels the inner moving of a message for the world. A friend of mine has upon his study wall these words, "All nations welcome here, except Carrie." Why make any exceptions? We can well afford to take Emerson's characteristic attitude, expressed seventy years ago, concerning New England reformers, "Every project in the history of reform, no matter how violent and surprising, is good if it is the dictate of one's own genius and constitution, though very dull and very suspicious if adopted from another."

Now as then, many of these projects are laughable, but a laugh does no harm. There was a law maker in Egypt—Egypt, Illinois, I mean—who became interested in the fact that so many people get sick about Thanksgiving and Christmas time, so he introduced a bill in the legislature forbidding the killing of turkeys between November 15 and January 1st. But what if the legislature had passed the bill. I submit it to you that the Illinois legislature has done worse things. Over in Ohio not long ago they formed a society for the prevention of kissing. Now I am willing to acknowledge that that is going a little too far but it did not succeed in stopping this estimable practice. In fact, our national cricket, Dr. Wiley, came out soon afterward with an official statement that kissing was not so harmful after all. Does not the relief that we all experience justify the crusade? And this we owe Dr. Wiley to go out of office, another illustration of the ingratitude of republics.

Many of these projects are quite visionary, but visions now and then some true. It has certainly been true in the mechanical world. The last century has been a time of wonderful material discovery. The next century will bring to light many better ways of doing things in the social world which is yet in its horse car and tallow dip stage. There is room for many experiments or for what the doctors would call "exploratory operations," upon the body politic.

Many of these projects have to be withstood, but that brings out only a proper balance of forces. The world needs both the centripetal and the centrifugal, the conservative and the radical. As that jolly rhymer and sound philosopher from whom I quoted a moment ago, the late Sam Foss put it:

"On this wide planet there is room For men of opposite creed."

There's room for Mr. Justin Bloom And Mr. Gontoseed.

For both these mortals there is need, For both there's ample room.

Tough Justin Bloom hates Gontoseed And Gontoseed hates Bloom."

So do not be afraid of being called a crank, of either variety. What is a crank? It is just an axis out of true. What is an eccentric? Just a wheel that is not round. What is a lever? Just a stick that is out of balance. In each case, the power resides in the irregularity. What could the mechanical world do without the crank and its first cousin? Just as much I used to give a lecture on the "Indispensable Crank," until I grew afraid that the people might regard it as autobiographical. Before the wheels of progress move, there must be the crank.

Too Much Prudence Sometimes.

If you have ideas in your head that you feel are for the good of the world, you should not count too carefully the cost and risk of putting them on the market. You may not get much for them and you may suffer considerable damage, but you will do justice to your own soul. You must not be too much bowed down by the opinions of others, for nothing is ever accomplished except against a great deal of good advice. You must not defer action until you have no further questionings in your own mind, for if you wait until you are absolutely sure that you are right, you will never go ahead. Do not make a God of mere prudence. Not long ago not far from here, Elijah Lovejoy launched his javelins at the evil of African slavery. His neighbors threw his printing press into the Mississippi. They shot him to death. That was not so hard on him. He did not have to run printing presses and he did not have to live. Where did he get the notion that a man has to live? Why? But the children of those who killed Lovejoy put up a magnificent monument to him. Even before they did that, Wendell Phillips sat down upon the then neglected grave and wrote back to a friend in Boston: "They tell me that Lovejoy lacked prudence. Ah, Prudence, Prudence, how many men march prudently into unknown graves, while now and then one or two forget themselves into immortality."

Scholars and Enthusiasts.

At the same time the careful study of conditions and remedies is another great source of social progress. If we have to take our choice between the enthusiast and the scholar, give us the former, but why can we not have both, aye both in one? Why need any man be either an ignoramus or a dilettante? For the best results we must have wisdom as well as devotion. Fighting windmills may be magnificent but it is not progress. While mistakes are wonderfully overruled and motives are what count the most, still we long for the best results possible. Most of us have strength and influence enough for only one great reform. Most of us need to follow Lincoln's advice, "One war at a time is enough." We should seek not only lines of effort that are good but the one that is for us the best.

Here comes in the opportunity of our schools and colleges to render us a great service and to pay their debt to the nation. Without deadening the sympathies, they should teach how to investigate, to discriminate, to decide. The study of literature should suggest the study of life. What is psychology for if not to help us peer into the soul? Economics ought to lead toward the mastery of fundamental laws. History ought to warn us against ways that lead to disaster. Incidentally this purposefulness should lend fascination to all these intellectual pursuits. There should be no more dreary pages, no more dismal sciences.

How little most of us, either inside or outside of college walls, know about the conditions under which our fellow men live and work. We have read Mrs. Humphrey Ward's novels, with their far away stories of lords and ladies, but how about the people who live on the next street. We grow enthusiastic about the classics, which hang on to life because they are true to life, but what do we know about the city teeming with life, "epic, comic, tragic beyond painting of the pen." We imagine ourselves in touch with the modern masters, but nearly every one of them has cried out with John Ruskin, "I simply cannot paint, nor read, nor look at minerals, no do anything else that I like, and the very light of the morning sky has become hateful to me because of the misery that I know of, and see signs of where I know it not."

Slumming Often Impudent.

It is not necessary for us to talk, make a fad of sociology, which some one has defined as "that science which tells us those things that everybody knows in terms which nobody understands." It is not necessary for us to do what is called "slumming," a pursuit which is often prudent and generally impudent. It is not necessary for us to enter the actual life and work of many different classes of people, though that is advisable now and then when possible. But we can investigate at least a little and let the sympathetic imagination do the rest. We can learn something from every man we meet. We can gain his point of view. We can put ourselves into the other fellow's place.

"The load beneath the narrow knows Just where the tooth of the harrow goes."

The butterfly out on the road Preaches contentment to that toad."

Sometimes it seems as if this knowledge of conditions were the world's greatest need, as if before it hate and indifference would vanish as mists before the morning sun. The old prophet dreamed of a time when they should not hurt nor destroy in all God's holy mountain because the earth should be filled with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea. Will not this time have pretty well come when the whole earth shall be filled with the knowledge of one another as the waters cover the sea? If we can get the Samaritan only to cross the road to where the wounded man is, will he not take hold and pretty nearly know what to do?

Need for Study.

How thoroughly are we acquainted yet with the great movements of our time? Into the temperance crusades even the boys and girls have plunged. That is where we usually commence—a very good place to commence and very poor place to quit. But have we studied the foundations of that problem, as glorious Frances Willard did, until we too have grown uncertain whether to call the saloon a cause or an effect. Just what do long hours and the lack of social enjoyment and poor housing and the inside of the dinner pail and the uncertainty of employment have to do with drink?

How many of us have studied the same broad way the causes of the social evil? I rejoice that the general attitude toward this is becoming more intelligent and more humane, these recent days. How could we get so blind so long? Let me tell you about the first funeral I ever conducted. It opened my eyes. It was a little mining camp out in the Rocky mountains. The second day I was there, the undertaker asked me if I should be willing to go to one of the houses of scarlet gloom, and conduct services for an inmate who had committed suicide the night before. Unnumbered thousands of them go that way. Of course I did as requested, but never will I forget the white face of that 17 year old girl as she lay in her coffin, or the words of her sister younger sister as she knelt beside that coffin and kept moaning over and over again, "O God, why did we come here, but there didn't seem to be any other place, there didn't seem to be any other place." Somehow I have never been able to take much interest in the cheap, negative crusades which we conduct against this evil, but I intend to do all I can to help see to it that every boy and girl has abundant chance for a useful and happy and an honored place in life.

How many of us have really studied the labor problem from the standpoint both of the employee and employer? Do we know that the fundamental question at stake in trades unionism is and what is to be said on each side. What effect to the industrial field is the present spread of syndicalism to have? And have you noticed the wide scope of labor legislation lately?

How many of us have analyzed at all the socialistic movement, not only in its remarkable part in progress, but also in its spread through general politics? Is the contest of the remote future to be over socialism? If so, and there are many who anticipate that, is it not time that we are acquainting ourselves with the pros and cons of such a socialistic program? Have we ever read a careful presentation of it by its friends and an intelligent criticism of it by its foes, or are we still contenting ourselves with the ignorant catch words of a quarter of a century ago?

The March of Sentiment.

But more important as a source of social progress than any of these schemes or systems, no matter how carefully studied out, is the growth of a certain sentiment among the people. I know how afraid many are of the word, but sentiment is the steam roller in the cylinder, the heart in the body, the secret of history. Out in the great mountains the rough miner is not afraid of the giant powder and the dynamite. He tosses them playfully around the feet of the toter feet. But one day in the late fall a little gentle snowflake treads with fairy step upon that mountain side. There she lingers in bridal array all the winter waiting for the wooing of the tardy April sunbeam. At last he comes and they start upon a lovers' stroll.

CLASS DAY AT ILLINOIS COLLEGE

Seniors Entertain Good Sized Audience in College Chapel Tuesday Morning.

A genuine old fashioned class day was held in the chapel at Illinois college Tuesday morning at 10:30 by the class of 1913. After the eleven seniors in cap and gown had entered and taken seats on the platform, the presiding officer of the occasion, Warren E. Hall, called on John M. Widenham for the class history. Mr. Widenham told of the fights, social events and other landmarks of the history of the class in a paper prepared in excellent style. Miss Genevieve Clark followed with the class poem, a piece filled with rhyme, reason and fun. Hume Whitacre's prophecy in the form of a mythical newspaper account of a college celebration in 1929 at the hundred anniversary of the founding of the institution told the fate sixteen years hence of "one of the most remarkable classes of Illinois college." The presentation to the juniors was made by Miss Marion Taylor. The class were plans characteristics of the foibles and distinguishing marks of the third year class. Miss Annie Bellatti responded to the presentation with remarks complimentary and otherwise. College songs were sung by the audience before adjourning from the chapel.

The last ceremony on the program, the planting of the ivy, took place behind the Jones Memorial building under the windows of the English class room. Rogee Linder delivered the Ivy Oration, a discourse which showed clear thought and practiced delivery and which was replete with advice wholesome to student and alumnus as well.

NEAR RIOT MARKS CONTEST BETWEEN PHILLIES AND CINCINNATI

Manager Tinker and Knabe Engage in Fight and Are Expelled From Game.

Cincinnati, O., June 11.—In a game marked by near rioting in which Manager Tinker of the Cincinnati team and Knabe, the second baseman of the Philadelphia team were expelled from the field of play, Cincinnati took the final contest of the series here today by a score of 3 to 2. The mixup between Tinker and Knabe came in the seventh inning. Previous to this the two men had engaged in a wordy war at second base and when the Cincinnati manager slid into this sack in the seventh, both players mixed it up while lying on the ground. When they finally stood on their feet they attempted to get together and it required the services of both umpires and a number of players to stop the fracas. Neither was injured.

WORLD'S Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE

Edinburgh, June 11.—The opening in Edinburgh today of the quadrennial conference of the World's Alliance of Young Men's Christian Associations afforded a sight that would have gladdened the eyes of the late Sir George Williams, were that staunch Christian worker alive today to view the striking evidences of the marvelous growth of the organization of which he was the founder.

At the opening of the conference the call of the roll was answered by delegates representing all parts of the civilized world. Not only were Great Britain, the United States, Canada and Australia well represented, but virtually all of the countries of Europe, together with South Africa, the South American republic of Brazil and the Asiatic countries of Japan, China, India, Korea and Ceylon had delegates on hand.

The conference will continue its sessions through the remainder of this week. Many eminent speakers are on the program and there will be discussions covering every phase of the great work that is being carried on by the World Alliance. Delegates will present to the conference reports showing the growth and progress of the Y. M. C. A. in their respective countries. These reports will show that the organization now numbers nearly 9,000 branches throughout the world, of which nearly one-fourth are in the United States and Canada.

IMPERATOR SAILS FOR NEW YORK.

Hamburg, June 11.—The Hamburg-American company's new liner Emperor sailed today on her maiden voyage to New York. An enormous crowd congregated at the dock and along the waterfront and with loud cheers gave an enthusiastic "bon voyage" to the new "Goliath of the Ocean." The big vessel, which is a triumph of marine architecture, steamed gracefully out of the harbor, carrying a complement of more than 4,000 passengers, among whom were many well-known Americans. It is expected that under ordinary circumstances New York will be reached next Tuesday evening or early Wednesday morning.

When the Emperor ties up at her dock in the North River next week New Yorkers will have an opportunity to inspect the largest vessel in the world. She has a gross tonnage of 50,000 (or nearly 5,000 tons greater than the Olympic) and is of the same general dimensions as the great Aquitania now nearing completion for the Cunard line. There are eleven decks on the liner. The promenade deck is a quarter of a mile long, so long in fact that a person standing at one end could not recognize a person at the other end. Rover steamboats of average size could sail lengthwise through one of the giant funnels of the Emperor. One of the novel features of the big vessel is a roomy swimming pool in a beautiful Pompeian hall. Among other luxuries with which the vessel has been fitted are a great entertainment hall two stories high, three electric elevators, a completely equipped gymnasium, "cottage" cafe, a winter garden and a Ritz-Carlton restaurant. The main dining saloon is 300 feet long.

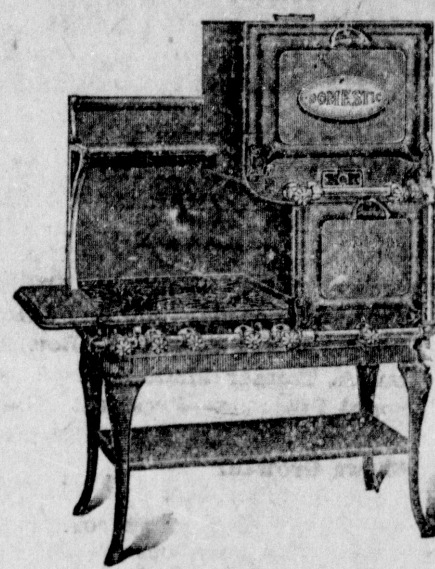

AMERICAN DRINKS FOR LONDON CHARITY.

London, June 11.—There was a great outpouring of London society today for the opening of the Noah's Ark Fair in Albert Hall. The fair, which will continue two days, is given in aid of a London hospital. Queen Alexandra is the patron of the fair and the Duchess of Marlborough, the Countess of Lonsdale and a number of other women in the highest ranks of the nobility are among the members of the committee.

The delighted throngs that wandered through the aisles of the big hall at the opening this afternoon afforded evidence that the efforts of the promoters to make the fair one of the "biggest and best" ever given in the metropolis had met with success. Novel and attractive features were to be encountered at every turn. Not the least attractive was the "American bar," where so-called American mixed drinks were dispensed to the thirsty. Lord Lonsdale presided as chief barkeeper and was assisted in making up the beverages by Prince Paul of Serbia, Count Elsen and Prince Obolenski.

The programme for the gathering covers two days and provides for a variety of entertainment features in addition to the transaction of the regular business of the convention. Several cities are engaged in a spirited contest for the honor of entertaining the state convention in 1914.

Yell Defiance at Blood Disorders

A Remedy That Has Shown a Most Remarkable Purifying Effect.

At Last You Can Get Rid of Blood Troubles—S. S. S.

The word medicine is one of the most abused in our language. There are certain medicinal properties just as necessary to health as the food we eat. Take, for example, the well-known tonic medicine S. S. S. This famous blood purifier contains medicinal components just as vital and essential to healthy blood as the elements of wheat, roast beef, the fats and the sugars that make up our daily ration.

As a matter of fact, there is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating each cellular part of the body to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. That is why it regenerates the blood supply; why it has such a tremendous influence in overcoming eczema, rash, pimples, and all skin afflictions.

And in regenerating the tissues S. S. S. has a rapid and positive antidotal effect upon all those irritating influences that cause rheumatism, sore throat, weak eyes, falling hair, loss of weight, thin, pale cheeks, and that weariness of muscle and nerve that is generally experienced as spring fever. Get a bottle of S. S. S. at any drug store, and in a few days you will not only feel bright and energetic, but you will be the picture of new life. S. S. S. is prepared only in the laboratory of The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., who maintain a very efficient Medical Department, where all who have any blood disorder of a stubborn nature may write freely for advice and a special book of instruction. S. S. S. is sold everywhere by drug stores, departments and general stores.

One day my husband got the neighbors in to see what the matter was but they could not help me. My first thought was for Lydia E. You may rest assured that I do all I can to recommend your wonderful medicine to my friends." — Mrs. FRED STONE, Route No. 3, Malone, N. Y.

SPARE THE BRIDE.

Accidents May Result From the Throwing of Old Shoes.

Since the safe and sane Fourth has been so admirably launched there should be a movement for the safe and sane speeding of the departing bride. Many a bad accident has been traced to the throwing of rice and old slippers. Like other old customs, it may be modified with benefit.

Confetti, the earliest substitute for rice, is less painful, but newer and more poetical are flower petals to throw after the bride. These may be bought from the florist or can be fashioned from tissue paper. A pretty idea is to use petals of the bride's favorite flower. They may be heaped on a big silver tray and passed among the guests while the bride is changing her frock.

Rather more elaborate are small bags of white tulle or set about six inches by four. Turn back the top into a half inch frill, fasten with casing and drawstring and fill with the bright flower petals or even rice and confetti.

Another novelty for the safe and sane good luck speeding are tiny horse shoes, slippers, hearts, rabbits' feet and other charms cut in silver paper. These can be bought, but are easily prepared at home. They are cunning when used as place card favors in small pasteboard boxes. An extra supply of the wedding cake boxes, marked with the initials of the bride and bridegroom, may be ordered for this purpose.

One original maid of honor prepared soft balls for the wedding party made of cotton covered with silver paper, on which were painted various mottoes appropriate to the occasion. A slipper of silver paper, marked with the initials of the bride and bridegroom and the date of the wedding, was prepared for each of the bridal party and passed on a tray while waiting for the bride to appear.

The Unfortunate Sex.

A few more things for which the modern woman is criticised:

For being "narrow."

For taking interest in welfare work outside of her own home.

For joining "culture" clubs.

For not keeping pace with her husband intellectually.

For being less efficient than men.

For crowding men out of remunerative positions.

For dressing according to the prevailing fashions.

For looking "old fashioned."

For hunting "bargains."

For spending too much of her husband's hard earned money.

For having no sense of humor.

For not having brains enough to appreciate the really important things in life.

For leaving the hall before the lecture is over.

For being late in preparing her husband's supper.

Surely no male person ever had to steer such a narrow course between Scylla and Charybdis!

Concerning Baths.

It is quite impossible to say what kind of baths are best for a person, because one is not always in the same mental or physical state. It might be that a cold bath would seem very desirable one morning and a warm one another, or even no bath at all might best suit one's mood once in awhile. It is a good idea to do the thing which seems to be the best for that particular occasion and not make such cast iron rules that one's individuality is lost in the need for observing them strictly.

TOURISTS ENROUTE BY BOAT FROM HONGKONG TO FOOCHOW.

Visited Cities Enroute as Schedule Allowed Some Time in Each—Search for Lace Ship Brings Surprise—Amoy a City Once Accounted the Filthiest in China.

(By S. W. Nichols).

Amoy, China, April 27.

Dear Journal

We are on our way to Foochow from Hongkong and have gone over nearly three-fourths of the distance. This is a part of the great deep that is said to be very treacherous and likely to make ships plenty of trouble, but Neptune has been on his good behavior ever since we started. Yesterday we had a small breeze, but not enough to do any harm and only gave the ship a little rocking and the passengers a bit of effort in keeping an upright position, but that was all and we had no cause for complaint.

We started from Hongkong Friday afternoon, three days ago, and next morning reached where we went ashore, as the ship was to lie there all day. We had been directed to a native woman named Mrs. Lin, who we were told would have chosen drawn work and we had a great time finding her. She had removed to a somewhat remote part of the place, but we found a missionary of the Baptist church, or rather, he and his wife found us as all were at a store looking at some goods. He gave us directions and we started off and tried to find the object of our search, but without avail till we came to a woman who could speak a word or two of English and she guided us to a young man who spoke our language quite well, and he said he was glad to help anyone from America, for our country had been so good to China in many ways. He took us through narrow byways, into back yards and what not till he came to a door in a wall and went in and we were at the home of Mrs. Lin, but were hardly prepared to expect what we saw. The woman had a commodious mansion, fitted in fine style and all about showed evidences of refinement, culture and business. She is a Christian and educated at a mission college in Singapore and is a cultivated lady. She was waiting on some customers as we went in, so we waited till she was ready to talk to us, which she did in due time.

Her goods are especially fine and rather high in price and we hardly saw our way clear to buy any, but took her address and went about to leave. The day was very hot and the glare from the smooth streets made the heat greater, and she urged us to sit in her cool parlor and have some lemonade and lunch. We declined the lunch, but accepted the drink with sincere thanks and gratitude, for it was fine and safe, which is important. She then sent her coolie along to show us some other places we wanted to find and we felt overwhelmed by such courtesy from a total stranger, who was under no obligation to us, and we expressed thanks accordingly.

We had a lunch with us which had been put up by the ship steward and after going about a while desired a pleasant place in which to eat and our guide took us through a store into an office cool and delightful, fitted up with all conveniences, and motioned us to feel at home, which we were hardly prepared to do, but sat somewhat undecided till a fine looking, well dressed Chinese gentleman entered and announced himself the proprietor of the place and bade us feel free at home. He spoke excellent English and told us to consider himself at our service. We were nonplussed by his courtesy, but naturally accepted it and ate our nice lunch with a relish, and when our host entered and asked us to have something to drink and ordered lemonade and bottled soda water in abundance, and absolutely declined to receive any compensation. He proved to be the husband of Mrs. Lin, which explained the freedom of the coolie in taking us there, and certainly we shall never forget his rare and highly acceptable courtesy.

He is a merchant dealing in goods of various kinds and selling largely by sample. Mr. Ewert and I needed summer hats, as our black winter gear is rather warm, so he took two hats from his samples and sold them to us at a greatly reduced rate, which placed us under further obligations, and he wound up by sending one of his clerks to act as our guide during the remainder of our stay in the city. His wife told us she had 500 women working for her and her trade extended over several continents, and she is hardly able to fill all her orders. We went aboard the ship with pleasant recollections of Sawtow.

We made small progress that night, as the weather was thick and a fog prevailed, and the captain said he was in no hurry to reach the next port, as there they regarded Sunday and wouldn't work at loading or unloading, which is a rare thing in China, so we had to spend Sunday on board ship traveling. The night before the captain told us we would not be at the next place later than two p. m., and if we would like breakfast a little earlier, so as to go ashore for a sight of the city he would have it for us and we said we would be grateful for his kindness. Early this morning we awoke and saw we had anchored. I spoke to Mr. Ewert and we were soon dressed and in due season ate our early breakfast and hailing a sampan, or native row boat, were soon ashore at Amoy.

This is a large city, with the European part on one side of the narrow bay and the native part opposite. We were soon ashore, but didn't ask for a guide, as there was nothing of especial moment we expected to see, so we started off on our own account and were soon in the midst of the city. It was Canton, only decidedly more so; in fact several degrees in excess of that. It seemed impossible that human beings could exist under such circumstances and it must be that they are differently constituted from us, as such surroundings in our country would be followed by all the diseases in the calendar. I can only say that the streets presented a compound of fearful odors, disgusting sights and villainous smells. Pigs, pigs, mangy, half starved dogs, and children, all were mixed up in one mass, while people swarmed in the ill kept streets and seemed unconscious of anything out of the way and when the captain of our ship said that Amoy used to be the dirtiest city in China and that it had much improved during the past few years, I almost fainted at the thought of what it must have been when it was worse than it is today. Across the bay a great many Europeans reside the houses look quite respectable, and naturally they want to be a respectable distance from the native part of the city. In one place we saw a queer method of ironing or pressing cotton cloth. A man had a roll of thick pink cloth and he rolled it over a cylinder about six inches in diameter and twenty or twenty-two long. On the ground was a granite rock some two feet by three, flat with a curve in it about an eighth of a circle and very smooth. Over it was a second granite rock twelve or fourteen inches thick and shaped like a keystone. Thirty inches wide at the bottom and fifty inches wide at the top and out of it was cut quite a large piece in the shape of a letter U. The under edge was wholly smooth and on the top stood a man and with a foot on each side of the U, he managed to rock the stone back and forth over the roller. On the roller the man rolled his cloth, placing between each roll something like oiled paper and when the cloth was removed it was smooth as if passed under a hot iron.

All along the street were all sorts of goods exposed for sale, vegetables, fruits, meats, dry goods and in fact everything that Chinese humanity could wish. A few men were seen with queues, though they were not many and occasionally we saw a man with the diminutive feet, which were once so fashionable. The ladies of our party insisted they saw some girls whose feet were being bound after the old time style, but I could hardly agree with them. Occasionally we saw a temple, but there were no services in progress and the doors were closed. We saw two buildings that looked like Christian churches and about them things were measurably clean.

Our Steamer.

Our steamer is the "Haltam" of the Douglas line and is a staunch craft, well fitted for the work required of her. She is, of course, not nearly as large as her sister ships that ply the ocean from continent to continent, but she is large for the coasting trade and makes regular trips between Foochow and Hongkong. Her commander is Captain Roach, a sturdy seaman of England, and as thorough going a gentleman as one could ask to see. He is very sociable when his presence is not required by his duties and is always attentive to the wants of his passengers and we found great pleasure in being with him. Some of the time we have passed through fine scenery, but generally the coast has been rather rocky and forbidding, though we have been in sight of land much of the time.

We had to wait a long time for the tide to come up and so became still better acquainted with each other, but finally the waters rose and the steamer again started and in due time we stopped at the end of our journey, at the mouth of the great Min river, on which thirteen miles up is our destination, the city of

for this stage of the journey. Here it is that we are to meet Rev. L. J. Christian, missionary pastor of the Congregational church of Jacksonville. The river will not float a large steamer, so we have to make the trip in a launch which we see approaching. On its deck stand two figures, which are to me of the greatest interest, a gentleman and lady, and as the little craft draws near I see the gentleman making demonstrations, which I at once answer. His hat and mine come off and wave in the air and as soon as he is in hearing distance he shouts, "Is this Mr. Nichols?" to which I wave an affirmative answer and ask if I am talking to Mr. Christian, which he answers with a nod, and soon the launch has arrived and we are shaking hands and greeting each other as if we had always been acquainted. He and his wife have been but a few years in the work, but they speak the language as if to manor born and are grandly occupied in the work. The ride up the Min river disclosed to us some scenery we did not suppose was to be found in this country and with the exception of the historic castles it will compare favorably with the famous trip up the Rhine, which is considered the finest sight in the German empire. Mr. Christian remained on that fact with pardonable pride, as he pointed to the beautiful terraced hills, the romantic shrines and the neat dwellings here and there along the way. The ride up the way was indeed delightful and greatly enjoyed by every one of us. Mr. and Mrs. Christian are charming people, young, enthusiastic, cultivated, refined, devoted, capable and absorbed in their work, of which I will speak more at length later.

The arrival at the pier was a scene indeed. Hardly had the launch come within a rod of the place when a gang of coolies boarded her and began clamoring for the job of carrying our baggage to its destination. It was a babel of intensified and it looked for a time as if our belongings would be literally torn to pieces, but our good friend was equal to the emergency and stood guard over it till he had concluded a bargain for its delivery. At last a dicker was made and away the men went, glad of an opportunity to get some money. The next thing was our own transportation and as it was two or three miles it seemed best to ride in the only available conveyance, the sedan chair, so we set out for the place at which they were to be obtained and soon we were wending our way through the streets of another Chinese city.

A gentleman on the boat had told us that Foochow would compare favorably with Amoy in forbidding scenes and conditions and we were prepared for the worst, but were most agreeably surprised to find that he was wholly mistaken. Of course anything drawn by animals would have been out of question, but we found a city with far better and cleaner streets and conditions in general and were gratified by the fact. The place is said to contain half a million inhabitants but there is no accurate census and it is only possible to say that it has a large population. It is most romantically situated, surrounded by mountains and hills and the mission buildings are at one side of the city on a fine eminence and beautifully located.

Mr. Christian's home is pleasant and comfortable and we were fortunate to have a whole new house to ourselves, as it had just been completed and not yet occupied, so that I have a whole fine room to myself and the others are equally fortunate. From my window I can look out on a beautiful prospect and I am some times reminded of the lines in the famous missionary hymn.

"Where every prospect pleases

And only man is vile."

Only the latter line is not wholly applicable in this case. We expect to remain here two or three weeks and I shall have more to say later.

The Girl In Business.

Etiquette as related to the business world is an entirely different thing from etiquette in the social world, though there is not and never will be any good reason why a well bred woman should not be always a well bred woman wherever she happens to be.

But there are certain small courtesies that are practiced in society that would be out of place in a busy office. The woman employee, the stenographer, the private secretary, the bookkeeper, or whatever her position may be, has a perfect right to expect her employer to treat her politely, but she has no right to expect from him the small attentions it would be his duty to offer if she knew him socially.

The best bred girls as well as the girls who are most successful in business never try to make the two absolutely dissimilar worlds mingle, but keep their social life entirely for the home.

Sometimes it happens that a girl makes lifelong friends among her business associates, but it is always best to err on the side of caution. Make many acquaintances, but few friends, and let the latter be tried and true. Be pleasant to everybody, but be in no hurry to form intimate friendships. If you do this you will be spared some painful mistakes and many regrets.

If a girl is pretty and attractive she is sometimes offered attentions by the men in the office. And she should be very careful about forming promiscuous friendships.

If she happens to take the fancy of her employer and he is a man of democratic spirit he will seek out the girl in her home after business hours and pay her such attentions as any friend might honorably do, and that such a thing rarely happens certainly shows in just what category to place attentions from employer to employee.

The girl who enters business life must not expect excuses to be made for her on the ground of sex. She is not as yet on an equal footing with man in the business world, but she undoubtedly will be in the future. Woman is discriminated against all through the industrial world just because she is a woman. She may do as good work as a man in the same position, but she cannot yet command the salary that he can. But if she keeps on doing her very best and is prompt and energetic and neat in appearance, with a pleasant word and a cheery smile for all comers, she can already go a long way, and the time is coming when she can go still higher.

Customs at the Table.

When taking one's seat at table the chair should not be drawn too close, for nothing gives a more awkward appearance than for a person to be seated too near to the table.

As soon as seated take up the napkin and if a roll is within it put the roll down at the left. The napkin is then laid partly unfolded across the lap. On rising from the table the rule is to leave one's napkin unfolded unless the hostess folds hers. At a hotel or restaurant the napkin is, of course, left unfolded.

Grapefruit and oranges are eaten with a spoon, which would be at the right. Oysters on the shell are eaten whole, if possible, not cut in half, and are eaten with an oyster fork, which usually is at the right.

It is not good manners to crumble bread or to eat bread between courses as though one were hungry.

For fish, if there is not a special fish knife, one may take a small piece of bread in the left hand and use it to separate the bones from the fish. Two or three forks are usually at the left of each place, the fork farthest from the plate being taken up to use as each course is served.

Care should be taken to hold the knife and fork properly. Odd ways of holding the fork are not good form. When raising the fork to the mouth it is lifted sideways, never pointed toward the mouth. When cutting meat the forefinger should rest on the handle of the knife, never on or near the blade. A small piece of meat is cut as required. When eating vegetables the knife is laid down, the blade resting near the center of the plate, never across the edge of the plate. The knife and fork are placed side by side near the center of the plate when one has finished. This custom is followed also if one's plate is sent for a second serving.

Little Points of Etiquette.

It is courteous to shake hands with a guest in your own house, and many hostesses repeat the handshaking when he leaves.

It is only necessary to bow an acknowledgment of an introduction, though shaking hands is cordial and not considered old fashioned as formerly.

A girl or younger woman should rise when an older woman enters the room and remain standing until she is seated. It is customary to rise to receive a guest, whether it be man or woman.

The well bred girl is thoughtful of the comfort of older women. She sees when her handkerchief has fallen and restores it, quietly shuts out a draft or brings a footstool.

down the mountain side, tripping lightly over the stones and rivulets and the broken sticks that have somehow climbed above the timber line. But what mad passion drives them now. On, on they rush, joined by unnumbered thousands like themselves, now leaping mighty chasms, catching up huge boulders in their grasp, breaking the scrub pines like tooth picks between their finger tips and at last throwing themselves with all the resistless fury of the snowslide upon the bunk houses of those miners, and the ore houses and the stamp mills and the peaceful sleeping valley down below. So in the great movements of civilization, it is not the clash of swords, nor the invention of gunpowder, nor even the signing of constitutions that is significant, but the march of sentiment.

What then is this sentiment that we need? Like most sentiment, it is hard to define. If we could only gain a love for equality, not some splendid phrase in ancient document or modern oration, but a practical tenet of life; if we could only become unwilling to accept any special privilege or advantage over our fellows; if we could only cease to desire more than our share of life's good things or an escape from our part of life's hard work; if the conviction could only get around that it is not good form to demand handicaps from others in the game of life, or to shirk or to grab; if the idler and the debauchee of luxury only could be made to feel that they are disgraced and not distinguished in the eyes of their fellow men; then it would hardly be necessary to force people to do right, for almost all that a man hath will be given for the esteem of his fellow men.

Humble Reformers.

The world has many unlabelled reformers of this kind. They may not be able yet to live up fully to their ideal; for the world is a complicated place; there are many entanglements of obligation, and perfect consistency seems to be an impossibility, but they have broken away from the bondage to the selfish life, they are weary of splurge, especially when their splurge is another dirge. They would not lead a life of even partial uselessness no matter what their wealth. For extravagance and for idleness under whatever guise, they feel a pity. If the world had enough humble reformers of this kind, and there are many of them among rich and poor alike, it would have no further need for reform. Almost any old kind of government would answer. This philosophy has been expressed by some of the wisest and best of earth. We think at once of dear old Tolstoi, whose one defect, perhaps, was that he was not quite enough of an evolutionist in his philosophy. Ruskin failed when he tried to work out industrial schemes, but he got down to the substance of things when he said "those of us who would do our full duty to society must, first, live on as little as we can, and, second, do all the useful work for it we can, and third, spend all we can spare in doing all the sure good we can." Cervantes approached the same truth, and St. Francis went beyond it. Moses had expressed it centuries before in his tenth commandment, calling upon people not to covet more than an equal share of property that had been assigned them; as well as in the earlier commandment, telling them each one to work six days a week. Jesus one to work in his first beatitude, commenced where Moses left off, with a promise of blessing to those who were so poor in spirit that they did not really care to have more than their fellow men. He rounded out the teaching by making ministers unto others a cardinal principle of Christianity.

But how can we expect the world ever to become inspired with a sentiment like that. If social progress depends upon such an apparatus of chimera, should we not just as well abandon the hope? Here let me boldly state my conviction that the religious instinct, properly utilized, can accomplish even this, and is, therefore, the ultimate source of social progress.

The Religious Instinct. The religious instinct is the most powerful thing in the world. Whatever be its explanation—a fear of hell, a hope of heaven, or perchance some higher motive than any of these—man has a passion for getting right with his Maker. Ultimately he will give up all else for that. It is the deep longing to which the experiences of short men, long men and thin men and fat men, and learned men and ignorant men, and rich men and poor men, and men whom they called good and men whom they called bad, but I never have seen an irreligious man. The trouble is that the religious instinct has been too easily satisfied, with speculations and with ceremonies and with ecclesiastical devotion all well enough in their place but frightfully out of place when made objects in themselves. If we can convince people that they cannot possibly get right with God, call him a person or a principle of action or whatever they please, without getting right with their fellow men. Then they will leave no stone unturned to accomplish that result. Nor is it difficult to carry this conviction to men and women of open mind. The weight of authority is altogether on that side. Every great religion of the world, before it has become corrupted, has taken that position. There Judaism under Moses and the prophets plainly took its stand. "For what will the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God?" There Christ battled with the scribes and pharisees, making the one condition of acceptability with God the life of kindness toward our fellow men. If we fall back upon our own reason, the conclusion is the same. There can be no heaven anywhere, on this earth or on any other, unless the inhabitants love their neighbors as themselves. The fatherhood of God is a delusion without human brotherhood. Communion with Christ is impossible except as we break our bodies and shed our blood for others in memory of him. If you leave the personal and turn toward science, you find the same law. Harmony with the creative purposes, or the fulfillment of one's destiny can be had only through sacrifice for others. The man who wishes to bring the force of the religious instinct to bear upon social progress has the resistless logic of the situation.

Religion the Real Hope. To religion, thus interpreted, the social reformer is driven. There is naught else upon which he can depend. He sees one effort after another go to pieces upon the rocks of selfishness and strife. Reformers themselves fail to live the theories they advocate. One of the most distinguished socialists in this country, and no one admires the socialist vision more than I do, not long ago became possessed of a large amount of money and asked a co-worker to share it with him in accordance with their theories. How long do you suppose that lasted? About three months. You should have seen the vitriolic correspondence that ensued. If reformers themselves cannot practice what they preach, how about the rest of us?

As for people in general, it is not easy even to interest them beyond what appeals to their self-interest. Upton Sinclair wrote a book called "The Jungle." He set forth the terrible conditions under which human beings in the Chicago stockyards had to work. What happened? Did we rise in our might and insist upon those conditions being remedied? Oh, no, we thought at once about the meat prepared under such conditions for our tables. We did not rest until some pure food laws had been passed for our protection. The author of the book sorrowfully confessed, "I tried to reach the heart of humanity and I reached only its stomach." And even when we do get people aroused, the fires have a distressingly speedy way of burning out, especially when there is a call for sacrifice. Then everybody is willing like Artemus Ward to lay his wife's relatives on the altar of his country.

The Hand Clasp of Friendship.

Reform, reform, to whom shall we turn. Social progress, whence dost thou come? Religion, religion, thou art our hope, only thou must be true unto thyself. Teach us that we cannot reach up to God save as we clasp the hands of our fellowmen. This truth is the supreme need of the world. This truth, whatever be your church or lack of church, I charge you boldly champion. This truth follow whithersoever it leads. When old Colonel Pike first looked upon the mountain that bears his name he started to climb it, telling his men he would not be back till fight. He did not come back that night or the next. Toward the close of the third day he crawled into camp entirely exhausted. "Boys," he said, "human foot will never stand upon that mountain." The old skeptic—for skepticism is the failure to believe that mountains can be climbed. He did not deserve to have the mountain named after him. You can go up that mountain on foot or on horse back, by day or by night, in carriage or in coach, or you can ride to the very top in a railroad train. Can we ever realize these ideals of which we have been thinking? Ever climb Mt. Sinai or the Horns of Hattin? Not today or tomorrow, perhaps, but if we hold that ideal before our eyes, and refuse to be satisfied, any more, than God will be satisfied, with anything lower or anything less less, we shall yet see the slowly moving accommodation trains of civilization winding their way to the very top, either this side of the clouds or beyond them.

After another musical selection President Rammelkamp conferred the degrees as follows, the candidates being presented with appropriate comment by Dr. F. S. Hayden, dean of the faculty:

In presenting Mr. Kehoe of Chicago, Dr. Hayden referred to the proud record he has made in the legal world of Cook county. Dr. Hayden said that Rev. Mr. Russell is a faithful sower of seed in the virgin soil of the frontier, devotedly having taken up work which needs doing, which finds not many willing hands and hearts. Alfred E. Day, the dean said came all the way from the shores of the Mediterranean in Asia. For years he has been working there in the Protestant college at Beirut, Syria, doing an important work somewhat similar to that which other alumni of Illinois college are doing in far away lands. Dr. Hayden spoke with special feeling of Rev. Allen Tanner, one bearing a name which means so much to Illinois college. He said that one who was thus to receive the degree of doctor of divinity who richly deserved it because of the work he is accomplishing in making clear the adequacy of religion to solve the problems of the present. The insignia of the degrees conferred were placed upon the candidates by William T. Harmon of the college faculty.

Other honors announced were as follows:

Departmental Honors.

Latin—Genevieve Belle Clark.
Special subject—Colloquial Latin and the Romance Languages.

Final Honors.

Genevieve Belle Clark.
Preliminary Honors.
Arthur Julius Petrie.

The annual statement made by President Rammelkamp showed that the year has been a prosperous one for the college and that the work done has been of a very high order. President Rammelkamp is putting a vast amount of earnestness and capability into the college and his work has brought results. The main facts from his address are printed elsewhere. After the address the audience joined in singing the college song and adjournment was taken to the gymnasium for the alumni dinner.

CANADA VS. SOUTH AFRICA.

LONDON, June 11.—The selected tennis players representing Canada and South Africa will meet on the Queen's Club courts here tomorrow for the first round in the preliminary matches for the Davis Cup competition. The meeting of the Canadian and South Africa teams is attracting much attention among the lovers of the sport as their meeting will be the only one of the first round competitions to take place in England. The matches between the United States and Australia was held in New York last week and that between France and Germany took place at Wiesbaden at the same time. The survivors of these preliminary matches are to meet in the final trials at Wimbledon about the middle of next month and at the end of the month the winner of the finals will contest with Great Britain for the cup.

A STRONG REFERENCE.
A young man recently applied for a position with a large printing house, and not having a letter of reference, offered his bank book. It showed a regularity of entries of de-

Turner's Carelessness.

Pat apes the most prolific painter who ever lived was the great Turner. When he died his house in Queen Anne street, which he had not occupied for a long time, was found to be full of masterpieces all going to rack and ruin.
Even the famous "Crossing the Brook," one of the priceless treasures of the National gallery in Trafalgar square, was there, with large pieces chipped off it. Many of Turner's masterpieces which he had refused to sell for "love or money" were almost ruined by the damp coming from defective windows and ceilings. There were, besides the oil paintings, literally thousands of water color drawings "choking about the place," any one of which would draw a little fortune at this moment from the pocket of an American millionaire. By his will he left them all to the nation.—London Spectator.

Speed of Flying Ducks.

How fast do ducks fly? Is a question that sportsmen have long debated.
A correspondent of Forest and Stream throws some definite light on it. Business requires him to ride frequently on a railroad in New York state that skirts a large lake. Wild fowl, startled by the train, will sometimes fly for a long distance parallel to the track at a speed the same as that of the train; hence it was easy, by timing them and getting the speed rate of the train from the conductor, to learn how fast they were going. The rate varied from forty-seven miles an hour to a little over fifty. The belief of gunners that ducks sometimes travel at the rate of a mile a minute is therefore not far from the truth.

No College Degree in Brazil.

Brazilian law, it is claimed, prohibits the establishment of any university because "the conferring of academic distinctions is contrary to the principles of true democracy." There are many institutions in Brazil where medicine and law are taught, and these grant certificates of proficiency to pupils who complete the course in a satisfactory manner. But, however well qualified he may be, no Brazilian can legally get a degree in his own country of a doctor of medicine or of law.

THE WORLD'S LATEST FINANCIAL AND MARKET NEWS

TRADING IN STOCKS COMPARATIVELY CALM

EXCITEMENT ATTENDING DAY'S BREAK, ABSENT.

Some Progress Made Toward a Recovery in Early Part of Session, but Was Nullified by Severe Break Shortly Before Close.

(By Associated Press)
New York, June 11.—The excitement which attended yesterday's violent break in stocks was absent from today's trading, which was comparatively calm and on a much smaller scale. Some progress was made toward a recovery in the early session, but the effect of this movement was nullified by a severe break shortly before the close.
Canadian Pacific was the particular point of weakness, falling nearly 8 points from its high price of the day to the lowest figure since 1911.
Steel sold below 50 for the first time since 1909. Union Pacific dropped to 137½ and a number of other new low records were made, with virtually the entire active list selling below yesterday's close.

Clear selling was perhaps the principal factor in the break which was a disappointment to traders who believed that a substantial rally was due after yesterday's collapse. This belief was strengthened by more cheerful reports from London and the close in American stocks there was followed by a material upturn at the opening here. Less importance was attached to the Minnesota rate case decision as a market factor and there was some disposition to emphasize the points in the decision, overlooking at first which favor the railroads. These conditions as well as the technical condition of the market were effective in supporting the list for a time, but it was soon evident that there was no sustained demand for stocks, either from investors or speculators and the market gradually lost its strength.
Conditions in the money market came in for considerable discussion.
Rates for time loans were stronger and it was said that even these higher rates were nominal, practically no time money being offered.
Short term note issues amounting to nearly $30,000,000 were announced and it was argued that they would impose an additional strain upon the money market.

President Rammelkamp's Statement About Illinois College A Year of Substantial Growth

It is a real pleasure to recount the history of the year just closing, for the record is most encouraging. There has been a substantial increase in the number of students; the quality of work done by the students has been unusually good; and the college has again achieved the task of living within its income. Furthermore, there has not been a year during the eleven years that I have been connected with Illinois College, in which there has prevailed a better spirit of co-operation and harmony between students and faculty. Friends of the college have, therefore, have good reason to rejoice and thank God for the blessing of the year.

Board of Trustees.

Several changes are to be noted on the board of trustees. It is with sincere regret that the trustees have accepted the resignation of Mr. Charles F. Wemple, '94, of Waverly, and Mr. Howard Van Doren Shaw of Chicago. Both gentlemen felt it necessary to sever their official connection with the board on account of the pressure of professional business duties. Friends of the college will be glad to know that this severance of official relations does not mean any diminution of the interest which both Mr. Wemple and Mr. Shaw have taken in the welfare of the institution. The board has recently elected to permanent membership Mr. Hugh M. Wilson, '87 of New York, Mr. John J. Bergen of Virginia; the Reverend Leonidas H. Davis, and the Reverend Howard D. French of Jacksonville. The election of Mr. Wilson to permanent membership and the conclusion of the term of Mr. Frederick C. Tanner, '88, created two vacancies in the list of alumni trustees. The alumni have elected Mr. Tanner, to succeed himself and Mr. Harry J. Dunbaugh, '99, of Chicago, to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Wilson.

College Faculty and Work of Instruction.

The work of instruction in the college has proceeded, during the year in the usual effective manner. Reference has already been made to the good work of the students. I might add that the excellence of the work done by the new students has been especially gratifying to the faculty. The college has been placed on the fully accredited list of the North Central Association of colleges and preparatory schools. It may be of some interest to explain the purpose of this organization and the significance of its so-called accredited list. The North Central Association is an association of the colleges and secondary schools of the middle west, organized to promote their mutual welfare and to raise the standards of education. Illinois College, it may be remarked, was one of the charter members of the organization. A few years ago, however, it was determined to revise the list of membership and virtually to drop from the roll such institutions as did not meet the requirements of a standard college. A committee was appointed to investigate the colleges within the territory of the association and to recommend a list of approved institutions. As a result of the work of this committee and of the action of the association at its last annual meeting, a list of approved institutions was formally adopted. The Illinois College should be included in this list is, of course, not surprising but it is nevertheless a gratifying recognition.

We shall miss from our campus next year two of our professors to whom the board of trustees has granted a leave of absence; Professors Cole and Smith. Both have served the college continuously for a period of ten years, and it is a pleasure to testify that the service has been not only long but efficient. They are planning to spend the year in travel and advanced study. They will carry with them the best wishes of a host of former students and friends.

The trustees have appointed to fill the temporary vacancy in the department of modern languages, Miss Elizabeth Udriz, now instructor in German in the Normal College of New York City. Miss Udriz is a native German who came to this country, and is a graduate of Cornell University, where she also received the degree of Master of Arts in 1912. Her unusual record as a student and her successful experience as a teacher make us believe that she will be able to maintain the good traditions and high standards of our department of modern languages.

The temporary vacancy in the department of biology has not, at the present writing, been filled, although we are in correspondence with several promising candidates for the position.

Professor William O. Reel, who was last year granted a leave of absence, and whom we fully expected to return to college next fall has accepted a position on the faculty of the University of Minnesota, and will, therefore, not resume his duties here. The trustees have appointed to this vacancy Mr. Percy F. Whisler, who during the past year has been very successfully conducting the work in Mathematics and Physics. Mr. Whisler is a graduate of Drake University, and has taken a Master's degree at the University of Illinois. Before coming to Illinois College, Mr. Whisler had held a position as Acting Professor of Mathematics and Astronomy in Drake University. His year's service on our faculty has demonstrated that he is a good scholar and a successful teacher and we are glad to welcome him to our permanent staff as Professor of Mathematics and Physics.

I insert the usual statistics showing the preference of students in the selection of their major studies, and the average registration for the two semesters in the various departments.

Conservatory of Music.

The Conservatory of Music, under the supervision of director Krieger continues to prosper. Only one change will occur in the Conservatory faculty next year. Miss Frances Elizabeth Oldfield having resigned her position, the trustees have appointed, as head of the vocal department, Mrs. Genevieve Clark Wilson. Mrs. Wilson is a concert singer of national reputation and a teacher of considerable experience. A graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, she studied opera with Gottschalk, of Chicago and oratorio with George Henschel of London. She appeared as a soloist with several well known musical organizations as the Thomas Orchestra and the Opolo Club, of Chicago. The Musical Union of Oberlin; the Handel and Haydn Society of Boston and the Oratorio Society of New Haven. She has conducted private studios in Chicago and New York and has taught in the Sherwood Music school of Chicago and the Toronto Conservatory of Music. It may be added that early in her musical career she taught at the local school for the blind, so that she already has a circle of acquaintances and friends in Jacksonville.

Six students were awarded teacher's certificates by the conservatory faculty this year and five have today received diplomas for advanced work and high achievement in music.

Whipple Academy.

Our preparatory department continues to maintain the high standards which have always characterized the school. We regret to lose the services of Mr. Samuel O. Welday, the principal, who is expecting to enter public school work. Mr. Walter Leslie Harris has been appointed to the position of principal for next year. Mr. Harris is a graduate of Park College, Missouri, the present year in pursuing the post graduate work in education at the University of Kansas, where he will take a master's degree. Mr. Harris has an excellent record as a student and has also had successful experience as a teacher in classics in the Fort Scott collegiate institution.

Seventeen students were graduated from Whipple academy this year. The students have been unusually successful in their declamatory work and debate. In a contest with the preparatory department of a sister institution, the Whipple girls won the declamation and the boys the debate.

Students.

Reference has already been made to the increase in the number of students. The total registration of different students in all departments of the institution is 374 this year, as compared with 283 in the previous year, thus showing an increase of 91. Especially gratifying has been the increase in the college department. As compared with the previous year, this department shows an increase of fifty-eight percent. I am sure that no one familiar with the history and policy of Illinois college, will imagine that mere numbers constitute an important aim of the institution, but we are glad to note that an increasing number of young people are availing themselves of the opportunities offered by the college.

John E. Bradley Memorial Scholarship.

The death of Dr. John E. Bradley, former president of the college and of his wife, Mrs. Martha J. Bradley, was sad news to the officers, alumni and friends of the college. Dr. Bradley was an educator of wide reputation. Both he and Mrs. Bradley, during the years of their service for Illinois college, worked most energetically for the welfare of the institution, and especially for the welfare and happiness of the students. At the semi-annual meeting of the board of trustees, in December, 1912, the members of the board expressed their appreciation of the services of Dr. and Mrs. Bradley in the following terms: "We recognize in President Bradley an admirable man and an able educator, with special qualities fitting him for the successful administration of the college. He was a friend to all the students and was very happy and influential in his relations with them. The student body was largely increased during his administration. He was active and devoted to the interests of the college. Mrs. Bradley knew every student and frequently invited them to her home. The residence of Dr. and Mrs. Bradley, on College avenue, opposite the campus, was headquarters of the social life on the hill. She was a woman of unusual force of character and kindness of heart. We shall hold in grateful remembrance their devoted and faithful service to the college and cherish their memory as friends."

Shortly after the death of Mrs. Bradley, the press reports indicated that she had generously remembered the college in her will. A recent communication from the executors of her estate brings the news that the bequest is one of a thousand dollars for the establishment of a John E. Bradley memorial scholarship. It seems most appropriate that the memory of President Bradley should be thus perpetuated in the college.

This action of Mrs. Bradley in remembering the college when she was arranging for the final disposition of her estate, is a beautiful example to other friends of the college. Let us hope that many will be written in which Illinois college will be remembered. As was emphasized in the report of last year, the fact that the college is now on a sound financial basis is an assurance to donors that their bequests will be permanently used for the purposes designated.

The Alumni.

The college mourns the loss of several prominent alumni who have passed away during the year. Several of their deaths would seem to deserve special mention on this occasion. Dr. Samuel Willard, of the class of 1843, one of the oldest and most highly respected alumni of the college, one of the founders of the Sigma Pi literary society, and a man who by his heroic efforts for the cause of human freedom and by his eminent services in the cause of education shed luster upon his alma mater, passed away last February. Somewhat earlier in the year alumni and friends of the college were shocked by the news of the death of Professor Harold W. Johnston, of the class of 1879. The death of Professor Johnston was a loss not only to the college but to the cause of classical learning in the United States. He was generally recognized as one of the best scholars among the alumni of Illinois college. His long and successful service as a member of the college faculty, his membership on the board of trustees and his general interest in the affairs of the college had endeared him to all who were privileged to be his students and friends. Mr. Paul Selby, of the class of 1853, one of the veteran editors of Illinois and justly regarded as one of the founders of the Republican party in Illinois, passed away a few weeks ago. Joseph N. Carter, '66, a lawyer of eminence and for a time a member of the supreme court of Illinois, has also passed to his eternal rest since our last commencement. Nor would I forget to mention the deaths of Frederick S. Giddings, '47 of Madison, Wisconsin, of James E. Munroe, '68, of Chicago and of the Rev. J. R. S. Burt, '55, of Pittsfield, Ill. It is in the lives of its worthy alumni that a college finds its greatest justification, and that we of the present generation find our inspiration.

We are honored to day by the presence of several members of the class of 1888, who are celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of their graduation from college. The class of 1887, which normally would have celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary last year, postponed its reunion in order that it might hold a joint reunion with the members of '88. We extend greeting and best wishes to these reunion classes. May the spirit of loyalty to "Old Illinois" which characterizes '87 and '88 spread to many other classes. The alumni catalogue was published early last fall. The publication speaks for itself and, therefore, need not be described. The catalogue was received with general approval, as is evidenced by the large number of commendatory letters received by the editors from alumni and former students.

The Alumni Fund.

The alumni fund, originated about two years ago, is reported to be on a permanent and promising basis. The college can never be thankful enough to its loyal and enthusiastic alumni for the establishment of this fund. The interesting report issued by the Directors last fall showed a total subscription of about $1,600. After deducting the expense of inaugurating the plan, the directors paid to the college treasurer certain subscriptions definitely designated for a Tanner Memorial Fund, and for the Rhoda Tomlin Capps Memorial fund, $500 for current expenses, and $339 to be set aside as the nucleus for an alumni fund endowment.

A preliminary report of the directors for the year just closing indicates that the amount of the subscriptions will be somewhat larger than in the first year of the fund. About twenty-five per cent of the alumni are now subscribers to the fund.

Gifts.

In addition to the gifts already noted, we gratefully report also the following donations: $50 from Professor Edward Capps for the library; $25 from an anonymous friend for the department of biology; and $25 from E. H. Fulton, 1900, for the Athletic association. The following friends have donated books to the library during the year: Mrs. Edward P. Kirby, Mrs. Thomas Worthington, Mrs. Frank J. Heintz, Dr. L. O. Schmidt, the Rev. L. H. Davis and the Iowa Historical society.

Finances.

Reference was made in the first paragraph of this report to the good financial showing of the year. The report of the finance committee of the board shows that the college has a balance of about $300 for the current year. In view of the distressing financial difficulties which the college was experiencing a few years ago, the balance of the last two years must be very gratifying to the friends of the institution. The thanks of the friends of the college are due to the members of the finance committee of the board of trustees for their excellent management of the endowment funds. It will be the policy of the trustees of the college to continue the conservative administration of the finances of the institution so as to avoid, as far as possible, the recurrence of an annual deficit. It is well to remember this unquestionably correct policy of the board when requests for larger appropriations for various interests are made.

The improved finances of the college must not make us blind to the urgent financial needs of the institution. We must not forget that the salaries of our instructors are still inadequate; that our annual expenditures for the college library are altogether too small, that several times the present annual amount ought to be spent on the improvement of the campus and the repair of the buildings, and that various student activities ought to be still more generously supported. In the annual report of last year it was stated that the college needed at least a half million dollars to enable it to accomplish its great mission in the field of higher education in the Middle West. I would emphasize once more, in this report, the amount of that need and I would enumerate again, somewhat in the order of their importance and with some modifications, the purposes for which this money should be used. Endowment for increasing salaries $200,000. Endowment for new instructors 100,000. Endowment for supplies, repairs, etc. 50,000. New library, with endowment 100,000. New Commons with small endowment 50,000.

The new buildings might well be erected as appropriate memorials to some of the great men who founded and built the college. The funds for salaries might also be contributed as memorial endowments of professorial chairs.

When about thirty years ago the late President Tanner had accomplished a part of his task he reminded the friends of the college to quote his own words, "that the institution is now ready for transition from quiet existence to vigorous life." The same words might be spoken today. The college is now ready for transition from quiet existence to vigorous life. We have an endowment that makes the future safe, but we must now seek an endowment that will make the future vigorous and prosperous.

Take Plenty of Time to Eat. There is a saying that "rapid eating is slow suicide." If you have formed the habit of eating too rapidly you are most likely suffering from indigestion or constipation, which will result eventually in serious illness unless corrected. Digestion begins in the mouth. Food should be thoroughly masticated and insalivated. Then when you have a fullness of the stomach or feel dull and stupid after eating, take on of Chamberlain's Tablets. Many severe cases of stomach trouble and constipation have been cured by the use of these tablets. They are easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Sold by all dealers.

WILL RECEIVE BIDS.

The city of Jacksonville, Illinois, will receive bids until noon June 15th, 1913, for the purchase and installation of a pumping engine at their pumping station in the city of Jacksonville. Bids to be made on pumping engine of two million gallons (2,000,000) capacity in 24 hours, the city reserves the right to accept the pumping engine of either capacity, also to reject any or all bids.

J. F. Brennan, Commissioner Public Property.

Can't Keep It Secret.

The splendid work of Chamberlain's Tablets is daily becoming more widely known. No such grand remedy for stomach and liver troubles has ever been known. For sale by all dealers.

REDMEN WILL OBSERVE THEIR CENTENNIAL

Celebration To Be Held in Danville July 4th—Mayor Davis Tells of Founding of Order.

Preliminary arrangements are being made for the Centennial celebration of the founding of the Order of Red Men in the state of Illinois at Danville on July 4. Invitations have been accepted by the Indiana Red Men through their Great Sachem Roy G. Emig and the latter has directed each lodge council to send a representative to the meetings at Danville. Major Gen. Joseph Fairbairn, department commander of the Patriarch Militant of the Illinois I. O. O. F. has ordered all Cantons of Illinois to be present to act as escorts to the Red Men.

The gathering is to be held in Ellsworth Park, Danville and preparations are being made to entertain about 8,000 members of the order. The local men plan to attend in large numbers and the Danville men have offered $100 in cash prizes for the large delegations. The following are the committee in charge of the event: L. M. McGillis, King Phillips Tribe; George B. McNance, Iroquois Tribe and William Derleth, Talagua Tribe.

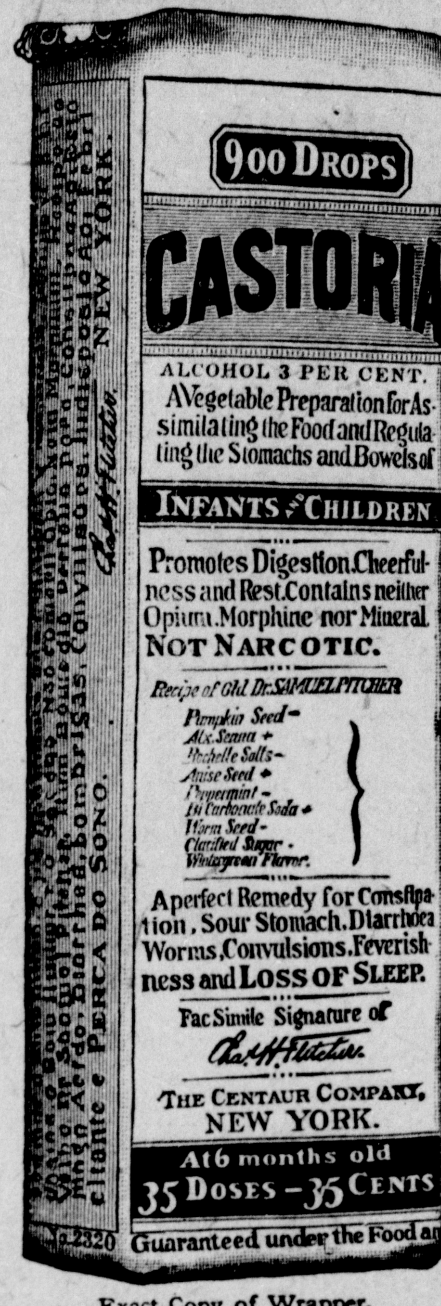

To Reproduce Vermillion Massacre. Arrangements have been made with the members of the Illinois National Guard to have three companies of infantry and one battery of artillery to assist the 3,000 members of the Red Men representing Indiana to give an exact reproduction of the famous Vermillion River Massacre.

The Improved Order of Red Men claims to be the oldest fraternal order in the United States of purely American origin as indicates the following sketch written by Mayor George Davis.

"One hundred and forty years ago there existed in the thirteen colonies a band of men gathered together for the protection of the rights of humanity. A member of the British parliament at that time referred to them as 'The Sons of Liberty' and they immediately took it up and were thereafter known by that title. Eight years afterward the members of this organization were entertained at the greatest tea party ever known in the world. The party was given in Boston harbor. It was not one of the modern pink affairs for this was held after dark. This band of men, disguised as Indians, boarded three ships loaded with cargoes of tea upon which England had placed an unjust tax, and dumped it overboard."

FOUR INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT NEAR BLUFFS

Car Driven by Mrs. Whipple Plunged Down Embankment and Turned Over Twice.

In a bad automobile accident near Bluffs, about 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whipple and Mr. Whipple's parents were injured. The automobile plunged down an embankment and turned over twice. Mrs. Whipple, Jr., was driving the car and when on the hill near the outskirts north of Bluffs, in attempting to keep out of a rut, she turned in such a way that the car went over the embankment.

Mrs. Whipple was badly cut and bruised about the arms and her husband was bruised and cut about the face. The older lady fell clear of the machine, but her back was injured and she was cut in a number of places. Mr. Whipple, Sr., was hurt the most seriously. He had his collar bone broken, one arm badly cut, three ribs broken and it is feared he is injured internally. It was not long until assistance reached the party and all were taken to the Meehan hotel, where Dr. Canetsy attended them. On the evening train all went to Decatur and Mr. Whipple, Sr., is now in a hospital there, his condition being accounted as grave.

Mr. Whipple, Jr., is a Wabash engineer living in Decatur. He ran on this division for years and is well known in Morgan and Scott counties. His wife is a daughter of J. W. Sullivan of Scott county. The car, which had recently been purchased by the elder Mr. Whipple and presented to his son, was considerably damaged. It is still at the bottom of the embankment and George Wolke will go down this morning to drag it into Jacksonville for repairs.

REMAINS SENT TO VERMONT.

He was held in high esteem by his many friends, was quite popular and took an active interest in politics. The letter stated that when he started to cross a street he fell dead from heart trouble.

AUTOMOBILE BURNS?

A resident of Prentice reports that his attention was attracted Tuesday night to a bright light which was apparently at a distance of a mile and a half south of Prentice, but as he could not locate the place and the blaze in a short time disappeared he gave the incident no further thought. Today the iron parts of a Hudson auto car was found in the road. No trace of ownership was found.

SERVANTS IN ITALY.

An interesting Experience With Their Perquisites and Wages.

A New England family spent last year in Italy, keeping house that the daughters, who were studying art, might have the comfort of a real home. They were much pleased with Italian servants, whom they found full of a delightful friendliness, equally removed from servility and impertinence; but, alas, these charming servants were not strictly honest. They had mysterious arrangements with the tradesmen, commissions, perquisites, pickings, treats to innumerable cousins. The mistress was troubled, yet she knew her Marietta to be a treasure whom it would be folly to dismiss.

Instead she summoned her and suggested, with careful delicacy, a curtailment of these self assumed privileges, offering increased wages in return. Marietta agreed, but at the end of a week withdrew her assent.

"I cannot—no!" she declared vehemently. "At first I thought but of the money. Now I have time to think of other things, and I find myself insulted. Twenty times I put out my hand to take what I must not and what I have always taken. Then I feel like a thief—I, who am an honest woman. If I am to serve the signora longer she will pay me as before and trust me. I have judgment and discretion. I do not forget her interests. A trifle here, a trifle there, what does it matter? If it is more one week it is less the next and always such a little. I cannot be tied to my wages as one ties a greedy boy to the leg of the table that he may not reach the jam. Surely the signora understands?"

Marietta remained and continued to be judiciously and discreetly honest in her own fashion.—Youth's Companion.

MANILA'S GRASS HOUSES.

Source of a Sort of Continuous Performance Conflagration.

Fires are much in fashion in the city of Manila. Conservatively estimated, 1,000 houses are destroyed annually. Perhaps two or three times that number of people are made homeless each year. The conflagrations are not due, as might be supposed, to lack of adequate protection in fire fighting equipment—at least, not since the United States took charge.

The fault lies in the style of building or, rather, in the materials used. All the business houses in old and new Manila are built of concrete, stone or hard woods, sometimes of all three. The wealthier natives and most foreigners have houses of stone or fine hard woods, but the districts occupied by the working class are invariably built up of nipa (a dried grass) and bamboo.

Both of these materials, especially nipa, are extremely inflammable. And, as frequent destruction of these shacks or huts means increased business for the nipa dealers, incendiarism is rampant during the dull season. Naturally the dull season is in dry summer, when the leaves cure and when fires flourish.

Tondo, an endless tenement quarter, is composed almost solely of nipa huts, a single square block containing anywhere from 100 to 400 houses, according to size. The houses in most instances are so solidly built as to afford room only for pedestrians to pass between them. The Paco and San Nicholas districts are much the same.—Engineering.

Liquids We Consume.

According to a recent statistician who has been computing the amount of liquids consumed in the United States in one year, we drink enough tea, coffee, wine and other popular forms of liquid refreshment in a year to cover an area of land ten miles square and ten feet deep, which is a large enough lake to float a navy. And the amount of alcoholic beverages alone which seemed to be necessary to satisfy the national thirst would fill a canal 100 miles long, 100 feet wide and 10 feet deep.—Chicago Tribune.

Prince Consorts.

The last century was more fertile in female sovereigns than the present. In the forties three young queens occupied the thrones of England, Spain and Portugal—Victoria, Isabella and Maria da Gloria. Their respective consorts were Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg, the Infant Francis of Assise and Prince Ferdinand, another Saxe-Coburg. The last two were granted the nominal title of king, to which Prince Albert never aspired.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Those Bills.

"Yes, indeed, it's really astonishing how many people call to see me when I am not at home," remarked Mrs. Trifle.

"It's always that way on the first of the month," replied the lady from next door.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

GATHERING OF STUDENTS OF TWENTY FIVE YEARS AGO

Members of the Classes of 1887 and 1888 Assemble Around Festal Board at Colonial Inn—Members Relate Experiences of Past Quarter Century.

One of the grandest gatherings of former students of Illinois college held in recent years, was the joint reunion of the classes of 1887 and 1888 which was held Wednesday evening at Colonial Inn. Thirty people sat down to the big circular table in the spacious dining room of the Inn and partook of a most excellent banquet of seven courses, served by Mr. and Mrs. Vickery, in a faultless manner. The table was artistically and beautifully decorated with flowers, a pyramid of pink and green, and green foliage forming the center of the table.

Those who were present included Mr. and Mrs. George H. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Merrill, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Harker, Dr. Allan A. Tanner, Mrs. Mary Tanner Post, Prof. Alfred E. Day, Mrs. W. T. Wilson, Harry J. McLaughlin, Mrs. Carl E. Black, Dr. Thomas W. Smith, Dr. Edward Capps, Miss Louise Capps, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Heintz, A. M. Cross, Rev. James G. Russell and daughter Miss Agnes; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Read Jr., Charles Taylor and sister, Dr. Harriett Taylor, Miss Laura Tanner, Miss Annie Tanner, Mrs. Marion B. Tanner. The party was chaperoned by Mrs. Tanner, "college mother" of the two classes.

After the banquet each member gave an account of his life during the past twenty-five years and it is needless to say that all lingered long at the Inn listening to the happenings and experiences of old college days and of the successes which had come to the various members. There was also plenty of wit and humor and the occasion was one that will linger long in the memory of those who attended.

Letters were read from Don C. Catlin of New York City; William E. McElfresh of Williamstown, Mass.; Walter M. Rose of Chicago; Charles Augusta Wall of East St. Louis; Robert L. Cochrane of West Duluth, Minn. Dr. Harker in his remarks paid a high tribute of respect to the member of Thomas Richardson of this city, a member of the class who died in 1896.

At the close of the addresses all rose and sang "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Goltra of St. Louis, Thomas Smith of New York and H. J. Dunbaugh of Chicago. The newly elected members, the Rev. L. H. Davis and the Rev. Howard D. French took part in the deliberations. A considerable amount of routine business was transacted. The trustees were well pleased with the work of the president for the past year and the report of the finance committee showing that the college has been living within its income.

A sum of $200 was appropriated for the athletic association on condition that the association raise the remainder of its deficit. Additional appropriations were made for the repair and improvement of the college plant. Among these appropriations was one for the placing of a new roof on the Jones Memorial building.
